TALK ON THE TARIFF.

Scott of Pennsylvania Defends the Mills Bill.

THE RANDALL MEASURE RIDICULED

Preparation of a Republican Plan to Reduce the Surplus, Cutting on Sugar and Internal Revenue and Adding to Wool

WASHINGTON May 11 - Mills of Texas from the committee on rules, reported a resolution providing that the hour for the daily meeting of the house shall hereafter be 11 o'clock and that after the general debate on the tariff bill shall have closed the house shall adjourn each day at 5 P M, adopted.

The house then went into committee of the whole on the tariff bill and was addressed by Scott of Pennsylvania. He began his speech with a defense of the science of political economy and the correctness of its conclusions. He asked whether this great country, 60 000 000 strong with its inventive genius keener, with its labor more skilled than any other people on the globe should decline to compete for supremacy in the marts of mankind and continue for ever to trade among ourselves, under the insane delusion that we were growing rich by the process. Our friends the enemy, said

Yes let us build a Chinese wall around this young and vigorous people whose eager enterprise already chafes under the bonds of nature, and if we cannot make it wholly impervious let us make it as nearly so as we can. They were Bourbons, Bourbons all and of the densest kind. Their faces were turned backward not forward. They were looking through the dismal shades of the dead past, not through the glowing day of the living present.

The bill was framed in the interests of the whole people. It was intended, in the first instance to stay the mounting surplus in the treasury, threatening overwhelming and possibly immediate disaster even now vividly impending and second to relieve us far as prudence would permit at this time the overburdened industries of the country from excessive taxation the proceeds of which do not pass into the treasury but go directly to support grasping monopolies, which were for the most part combined in utterly indefensible and atrociously oppressive trusts.

RANDALL'S BILL RIDICULED

A bill had been introduced by a member of the house (Randall), and referred to the committee which provided a large reduction in internal taxes and dealt very curiously indeed with customs duties. But taking the iron and steel schedule as a fair index of the genius of the proposed bill, and the one with which the member introducing it was supposed to be most familiar, and passing judgment on the whole from this, it was safe to say it was not in line with revenue reform, not in the interest of the consumer, nor the middleman nor the manufacturer, but in fact increased the burdens on every vocation, every industry, the iron worker as well as the farmer. Taking it item by item, it gave the astounding result that for every dollar of reduction of duties in the iron schedule $26 were added to the burdens of the public, already too onerous to be borne. Instead of reducing taxation this bill actually proposed to increase it.

The majority of the committee on ways and means had sought first to relieve the manufacturing industries by placing on the free list, so far as possible such articles as were essentials necessary to them to enable them to compete not only in their home markets but in the markets of the world. Second in revision and readjustment of the various schedules under the existing tariff to leave ample duties on all merchandise that could possibly be imported from abroad in competition with home products and to protect home manufacturers and labor employed by them.

A TWO EDGED SWORD

Protection so-called would add not a penny to the wage worker's pay or give one day's additional labor in a year but it would rob him of an undue proportion of his earnings to purchase the necessaries of life and keep him a trembling dependant, since the recent history of this country showed that the tendency of protected industries was towards combination in the form of trusts under which production was arbitrarily suspended raising prices to the consumer, and throwing the workman out of his job. A monopoly more terrible more dangerous to the liberties of the country more oppressive to labor could not be imagined.

Upon no class of people does the present fiscal burdens bear so heavily as upon the farming class. One of the strong arguments of the protectionists to the farmer was the home market that protection was alleged to insure for his produce. It was a fallacy and a fraud, and the intelligent farmers would not longer be deceived by it.

He called attention to natural gas and said manufacturers who are so fortunately situated required nothing more to enable them to take the start of this majestic world and bear the palm alone but free material open markets around the globe no unnecessary restriction here nor there cheap food and cheap clothing.

AS TO WOOL

Another vexed question is wool. This bill puts wool on the free list not only in the interest of wool manufacture, but in that of sheep husbandry itself. To enable the manufacturer of this country to compete in the home market and to export the surplus abroad he must be able to purchase his wool as favorably not only as to price but as to selection of quality and kinds as does his foreign competitor. Immediately wool was free our manufacturers would begin to draw upon the markets of the world for raw material to meet American demands. Thus result would be an advance in wool in the foreign markets and an advance abroad would advance the price here tariff or no tariff.

In conclusion he said: We are here sir we the majority of the ways and means committee and of this house in defense of American industry. We alone offer protection. We seek alone the independence and aggrandizement of domestic labor by liberating it from unnatural restraints and allowing it undisturbed possession and complete enjoyment of its own earnings. If in other side offers it—what? A monopolized market in which to buy the necessaries of life on the one hand and on the other a labor market subject to the caprice of trusts. Will the laboring men accept that generous tender and vote with the monopolists party under coercion of his employer? If they do the hideous disaster foreseen by Jefferson as the natural result of the restrictive and subsidy policy will rush down upon us and the government of the Union will pass into the hands of those who openly propose to pervert its powers and employ them to plunder the people for their own enrichment.

Scott spoke for more than two hours and was loudly applauded at the close.

OTHER SPEECHES.

Gear of Iowa in discussing the Mills bill which he said would destroy American labor said in this contest between free trade and protection the republican party had on its side the interests of manufacturers and laborers while on the other side was a large portion of the democratic party backed by foreign influence.

Dibble of South Carolina criticised the republicans for their proposition that the only tariff duties which should be reduced were those on articles which could be produced in the South and for desiring that everything should be protected except the rice of the Carolinas and the sugar of Louisiana.

Haugen of Wisconsin opposed the bill.

The committee then rose and the house took a recess until evening.

The house at the evening session passed thirty-seven pension bills and adjourned.

OREGON INTERESTS.

A Plan to Divert Improvements from This State to California

WASHINGTON May 11—The bill granting to the Oregon Railway & Navigation Company right of way through the Nez Perce Indian reservation has passed the senate.

Senator Dolph presented to the second assistant postmaster general to-day numerously signed petitions by citizens of Union and Umatilla counties Oregon asking for an increase of mail service on the route from LaGrande to Joseph to seven times per week. The river and harbor bill which has passed the house contains a provision directing the secretary of war to establish moorings for the protection of shipping in open and exposed parts of the northern coast of California and that the cost thereof should be paid out of the unexpended balance of the appropriation of March 3 1879 for the establishment of a harbor of refuge on the Pacific coast. The harbor of refuge was located by a board of engineers appointed for that purpose at Port Orford. Senator Dolph says he will not submit to this attempt to divert this appropriation from Port Orford to improvements on the California coast. That while he may not be able to obtain increased appropriation and a direction of the secretary of war to proceed with the work at Port Orford he will not submit to anything that looks like abandonment of that project by the government. Senator Dolph proposes an independent appropriation for the proposed public moorings on the Northern coast of California at Port Ross Eush Mills Fish Rock Shelter Cove and Trinidad.

By the general bill which passed the senate yesterday the land grant of the Northern Pacific Railroad Company is forfeited and Senator Dolph's amendment for protection of settlers on unearned lands north of the Harrison line and Senator Mitchell's amendment granting to the city of Portland right of way for water pipes were adopted.

A REPUBLICAN TARIFF BILL

It Cuts on Sugar and Internal Revenue, and Increases the Wool Duty

WASHINGTON May 11—McKinney of Ohio, has presented a tariff bill which he will at the proper time introduce as a substitute for the Mills bill. It proposes a reduction of at least one half the sugar duty repeal of all tobacco taxes except cigars cigarettes and cheroots repeal of internal revenue tax upon alcohol used in the arts and the adoption of the wool schedule agreed upon by the wool convention. The total reduction effected by the bill is very nearly $65 000 000.

Causes of delay have been manifold. One was the time required in properly drafting the bill. Frequent consultations were held not only with every republican member but with leading republicans everywhere who are prominent in republican circles. All the varying views and all the clashing interests had to be met and harmonized. The bill as it stands represents the united ideas and wishes of the republican party all save one and that one is Judge Kelley. With a pertinacity that comes of his 74 years the senior member of congress refuses to listen to any tariff measure which will cut down the sugar duty and he rests on his hobby of free whisky.

LAND OFFICE DECISIONS

The Commissioner Reversed in Two Cases, and in One Sustained

WASHINGTON May 11—The secretary of the interior to-day in a letter to the commissioner of the general land office holds that the presence of a considerable growth of mesquite trees upon land does not exclude it from entry under the desert land act. This decision affects a large area in the south west and is the result of a petition signed by the governor and a large number of citizens of Arizona.

WASHINGTON TERRITORY CLAIMS

WASHINGTON May 11—Secretary Vilas to day reversed the decision of the commissioner of the general land office who held for cancellation the claim of Peter W Bennett covering certain land in the Olympia Washington territory land district.

Secretary Vilas has affirmed the decision of the commissioner of the general land office in holding for cancellation the entry of Mrs Barbara A Reed covering certain land in section 9 township 14 north range 19 east Washington territory. This decision of the secretary awards the land in question to Silas A Gilson.

THE HOLLADAY MANSION.

It is Advertised to be Sold at Auction Next Week

WASHINGTON May 11—The handsome residence of Ben Holladay who died in Portland last August with its costly contents is advertised to be sold at auction under deed of trust next week. The house is near that of John Sherman has superb furniture a large classical library fine oil paintings by celebrated masters elegant bronze and marble statuary and two bronze lions seven feet long which cost $6000 each. The announcement of the sale has aroused much talk among old residents who remember the house and its former occupants in the days when it was the most elegant and hospitable house in Washington and the center of the most extravagant and gay coteries in the capital.

Failed of Renomination.

WASHINGTON, May 11—Burnh Williams one of the men who conspired to defeat the Beck amendment to the bond purchasing bill in the house has received his reward. His constituents in Ohio refused to nominate him for congress. He was elected to the forty-eighth forty ninth and fiftieth congresses. Whether his participation in the conspiracy to defeat the Beck amendment in the house was the cause of his defeat is not yet known but he has worked persistently to be elected to the fifty first congress, only to be rejected by his constituents.

The Melbourne Exposition.

WASHINGTON, May 11—The chief United States commissioner to the Melbourne International Exhibition and the secretary of the commission will sail from San Francisco for Melbourne May 31. The latter will continue to receive applications for space from those intending to exhibit goods. His address will be No 1726 Pennsylvania avenue Washington until May 20 and after that date Care United States consul general, Melbourne Australia.

The Pacific Railways

WASHINGTON May 11. The house committee on Pacific railroads decided to resume consideration of the Central Pacific railway next Friday. It was decided to take the bill already prepared and reported to secure repayment of the indebtedness to the government of the Union Pacific Railway Company as the basis of the bill to meet the case of the Central Pacific, the reporting such changes as the committee may see fit to make.

Friendly to Stanford.

WASHINGTON May 11—The statement is made here that the delegates to Chicago from Nevada who will be chosen at Winnemucca on May 15 will be friendly to Stanford for president and will give him a complimentary vote, at least. From advices received here Senators Stewart and Jones will be selected as delegates at large.

Pensions Granted.

WASHINGTON May 11—Pensions were granted to day as follows: Oregon Mexican survivors H Samuel and Henry Whitehall. Arizona territory an increase has been granted to Daniel R Ackerman Phoenix. Washington territory Original invalid John C Cunningham Colville. Restoration and increase James F Johnston Rockford.

Will Defeat Itself

The report that Randall controls fifteen democratic votes which will defeat the Mills bill is interesting but it hardly puts sufficient stress on the fact that the Mills bill is of such a character that it will defeat itself.

Pullman reservations made for all points east via the Northern Pacific Railroad. Office, No 2 Washington street.

WORK OF HERMANN.

He Makes no Pretension to Oratory or Brilliance,

BUT GETS THERE JUST THE SAME

What Oregon's Congressman Has Accomplished This Session, in Comparison With the Work of Leading Members

SALEM May 11—By night's mail R J Hendricks editor of the Statesman received a personal letter from Congressman Binger Hermann at Washington of date of May 9th regarding his work in congress from which your correspondent is permitted to take the following:

Referring to the suggestion of many of my democratic friends that I have not passed any bill at this session although I have secured the passage of four already one a very important public bill (a new land district embracing nearly ten million acres) and hope to pass about six more before we close the session not counting what is secured in the river and harbor bill and other general measures—I concluded to interview some of the leading and oldest members of this congress as to their records in the passage of bills, and to-day each of the gentlemen named expressed to me the difficulty he has experienced to get any measures through this house and from their own lips I quote to you their answers to me:

RECORDS OF PROMINENT MEMBERS

Gen Butterworth of Ohio says: I have passed one bill and had a close scratch for that.

Gov Dingley of Maine says: I passed one outside of a few pension cases.

S S Cox of New York says: I have passed none. I cannot get recognition.

Gen Culcheon of Michigan says: I have passed one public bill and four private bills.

Judge Peters of Kansas says: I have passed four private bills.

Mr Lanham of Texas says: I have passed two private bills.

Mr Breckinridge of Kentucky says: I have passed two private bills and consider myself very lucky.

Mr Townsend, of Illinois says: I have passed one or two private bills.

Mr Cannon of Illinois, says: I have passed but one and that a private pension bill.

Gen Weaver of Iowa, says: I have passed but two private bills. The difficulty is great.

Col T B Reed republican leader of Maine says: I have passed three private bills.

Mr Mills the democratic leader of Texas says: I have passed one public bill and one private bill.

OREGON'S DISADVANTAGE

These gentlemen have neither the immense correspondence nor the department work nor committee labors in the interests of their constituents which belong to the member from Oregon. They have colleagues to aid them in a close vote. Mr Cox of New York can bring thirty-four votes where New York is locally affected while Oregon is sure of but one. New York is 34 to 33, Oregon is 1 to 325. In the senate, however Oregon is the equal of New York, or 1 to 38. With all these difficulties Oregon has more bills passed and far more reported on the calendars, than any other state in proportion. Her reported appropriations are larger than ever.

The labor involved in direct legislation is to the Oregon member nothing in comparison to the innumerable details before the departments which create increasing correspondence that is both exciting and laborious. Yours truly,

BINGER HERMANN

AN UNWILLING WITNESS

He Refuses Point Blank, to Answer Certain Questions Regarding Shareholders

WASHINGTON May 11—The examination of Col Knight general manager of the Superior Lumber Company of Wisconsin, before the senate committee on Indian tradership regarding the Agent Gregory matter and the cutting of logs from the Indian reservation was resumed to-day.

The most interesting feature was one which will not appear in the record. During the course of a long cross examination by Senator Chandler witness was asked to give a history of the company and the names of the largest stockholders. He proceeded with the history and named several gentlemen as among the leading stockholders but declined to state the amount of stock they owned on the ground that he had no right to exploit their private business affairs. He made no exception in respect to Col Wm F Vilas who he said owned 240 shares of the face value of $24 000 and himself whose investment was $68 000 or 680 shares.

Senator Chandler insisted upon having further information and Senator Faulkner objected.

The witness in reply to Senator Faulkner stated that all the stockholders were republicans except Vilas and himself and that none of them had any connection in any way with the matter under investigation.

Senator Faulkner then repeated his objection.

Considerable discussion of the matter ensued and witness finally said he could not remember the amounts of the investments of other shareholders, and would not furnish them from the company's records unless compelled to by law, except as to Vilas and himself. He denied that the company had cut any timber from reservation lands and if they had sawed any for other parties it had been unwittingly.

ONE WAY TO REDUCE THE SURPLUS

Give Buildings to all the Principal Towns for Their Postoffices

WASHINGTON May 11—The house committee on postoffices to-day ordered a favorable report on Chairman Blount's bill to provide a general law for the erection of post office buildings. It provides for the appointment in the postoffice department of an architect and superintendent of instruction at a salary of $4000 per year who shall with the assistant supervising architect of the treasury prepare designs for postoffice buildings. The postmaster general is authorized in his discretion to construct postoffice buildings at any place at which the gross postal receipts for two years or more shall have exceeded $9000 in each year. No building erected under the act shall cost more than $25 000. The sum of $200 000 is to be appropriated to be available during the current year to carry out the purposes of the bill. The number of towns which would be entitled to postoffice buildings under the provisions of the bill is placed at 1900 and it is estimated that $25 000 000 would be required to supply them all with buildings.

IN FAVOR OF TURPIE

Decision of the Senate Committee on Privileges and Elections

WASHINGTON May 11. The senate committee on privileges and elections in the Turpie case came to the unanimous conclusion that the determination of the Indiana house of representatives under the particular circumstances of this case of the title of its members to their seats is conclusive upon the senate and therefore that the persons who voted in the election of senator must be conclusively presumed to be entitled to vote and consequently Turpie is entitled to his seat.

A BID FOR AN AIR SHIP.

A Bill to Give the Inventor, if He Succeeds, $150 000

WASHINGTON May 11—The house committee on ventilation to-day instructed Chairman Landes to report to the house a bill appropriating $150 000 to be paid as bounty to Mr A DeBaussett of Chicago when he shall have completed and successfully demonstrated the practicability of his invention of an air ship.

BOND PURCHASES

They Have Not Succeeded in Reducing the Surplus

WASHINGTON May 11—The secretary of the treasury to-day accepted bonds aggregating $5 378,250. Rates paid 4s registered and coupon 126@127; registered 4½s 107@108. Offerings were $7 226 250.

The total amount of bonds purchased under the circular of April 17 including to-day's purchases is $18 688 000. Their cost to the government including the premium was $21 65 500. When the secretary issued his offer to buy bonds the treasury surplus, as stated in the official statement was $105 22 000. Since then it has fluctuated between $140 000 000 and $102 000 000. According to the statement issued yesterday it was $105, 400 000 or slightly in excess of what it was when the buying of bonds began showing the excess of receipts over expenditures during the period stated was greater by $175 000 than the amount expended up to yesterday in the purchase of bonds.

It is understood that this apparent failure to reduce the surplus had considerable to do with the action of Acting Secretary Thompson to-day in accepting over $7 000 000 of bonds at rates higher than had previously been paid. To-day 127 was paid for 4 per cent bonds and 108 for 4½. Heretofore 126 and 107¾ respectively were the highest prices paid. Secretary Fairchild is disposed to buy heavily but it is intimated at the department that it is not likely that he would go above to-day's rate unless specially impelled thereto in the interest of the government.

THE WALKING MATCH

The Victory Lies Between Littlewood and Guerrero

NEW YORK May 11—Guerrero if he continues his present gait until to-morrow night, will win the six days' race and beat the record. He covered 106 miles yesterday and at midnight was only four miles behind Littlewood. Noremac passed Hughes during the night. At 9 A M the score stood: Littlewood 472 Guerrero 452 Herty 438, Golden 415 Noremac 410, Hughes 396 Dillon 388 Campana 290.

At 3 P M the score stood: Littlewood 500 Guerrero 482 Herty 466 Golden 435, Noremac 433 Hughes 417 Campana 314.

5 P M—Littlewood 560 Guerrero 490, Herty 474 Golden 443 Noremac 427 Hughes 425 Campana 321.

6 P M—Littlewood 534 Guerrero 494, Herty 479 Golden 448 Hughes 425 Noremac 456 Campana 325.

GUERRERO THE FAVORITE

Midnight score: Littlewood 527 Guerrero 524 Herty 504 Golden 471 Noremac 470, Hughes 445 Campana 341.

Littlewood is limping and Guerrero is gaining on him. Betting men are putting their money on the Mexican champion. Albert says he will challenge the winner if he breaks the record and it is understood Rowell wants to get in such a race.

WHAT AILS THE MEXICAN?

Guerrero has apparently gone wrong. At 12 60 he came staggering around the track, and fell at the Madison Square entrance. It is believed he has been drugged. His trainers deny anything of the kind however. He walks along in a vague wondering way and continually rubs his head as if he wants to brush some cloud that was gathering about him. He left the track at 12 12. His trainers say he was simply tired consequently light headed.

BASEBALL.

Close Games at a Number of Cities--Rain at Chicago

DETROIT May 11—Conway pitching was puzzling to the Quakers to-day up to the eighth inning when they managed to get onto it for several good hits and these with bases on balls give them their four runs. Buffinton's delivery was very severe on the Detroits but they managed to core five earned runs and got another on errors. Score: Detroits 6 Philadelphias 4.

TWO TO NOTHING

PITTSBURG May 11—The home club was unable to do much with Sowders to-day and were shut out. Beckley got their two runs on two lucky hits aside from which they couldn't hit Galvin. Score: Pittsburg 0 Boston 2.

SIX TO FIVE

INDIANAPOLIS May 11—Healy's support was poor but their bad work could not overbalance the miserable errors of the home team which gave the visitors the game. Score: Indianapolis 5, Washington 6.

Drowning of Ex-Mayor Bryant of San Francisco.

WAS IT ACCIDENTAL OR SUICIDAL?

Failure of Lusk and Co, Due to the Coleman Assignation—A Heavy Fire—Arrival of the Albatross—The Lumber Ring

SAN FRANCISCO, May 11.—W J Bryant ex-mayor of this city was attacked with ver igo on the narrow gauge ferryboat this morning and fell into the bay and was drowned The body was recovered and removed to the morgue

Considerable doubt is expressed whether Bryant's death was due to accident or suicide and the latter theory seems to be more generally accepted He left here for Alameda on the steamer Encinal at 9 15 this morning and was noticed to be very nervous and excited when he purchased a ticket Some of his intimate friends say he has acted queerly recently, and fears have been expressed that he was getting softening of the brain No one appears to have seen him fall from the boat but the body was picked up after it had sunk twice, by a boat lowered from a passing steamer Life was not extinct but the men in the boat did nothing for him, and they also insist that he was still alive when placed on the wharf a few minutes later The body was afterwards removed to the morgue Coroner Stanton stated that an autopsy would have to be held to determine whether or not Bryant had a fit.

PARTICULARS OF THE ACCIDENT

The theories of suicide and accident were propounded as soon as Mr Bryant's death was known, but the former was scouted at the office of the State Investment Insurance Company, of which he was president His private affairs, so far as known, were not such as to make a man desperate, but his health had been poor for six months or more as he was suffering from Bright's disease of the kidneys Some say he had heart disease He had wasted away greatly and was subject to fainting spells It is thought probable that when Mr Bryant went to the ticket office one of these spells were coming on and that he fainted while leaning on the rail of the boat, a few minutes later, and, in falling, slipped into the water

When he made his appearance at the ticket office of the narrow gauge ferry a few minutes before 9 15 he was very nervous His hands trembled violently and he seemed to have difficulty in seeing clearly It was also evident that he was mentally perturbed He walked slowly aboard the Encinal She had scarcely cleared the slips before a loud splash was heard, and it was seen that he had fallen overboard The tide was flowing strongly and carried him rapidly southward until he was picked up by a boat

Mr Bryant was born in New Hampshire and was 56 years of age He leaves a widow and two daughters one residing here and the other in New Hampshire He came to California in the very early days, and engaged in mining Since then he has been prominent in business and political circles, and served as mayor of this city two terms between the years 1875 and 1879 His wealth is estimated at between a quarter and a half million

A CANDIDATE FOR GOVERNOR

Bryant was a candidate before the last democratic state convention for the nomination for governor Assisted by his friends he made a very active canvass He was sick at that time, but his indomitable courage kept him around His name went before the convention, and although he had a large share of the city delegation he fell behind on the first ballot He withdrew after the third ballot in favor of the late Governor Bartlett, who then received the nomination

FAILURE OF LUSK & CO

The Assignment Brought About by the Coleman Failure.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 11.—The announcement was made late to-night that the firm of J Lusk & Co doing a general and extensive canning business, has made an assignment Their canneries are situated in Oakland The assignment was made to David Wilcox The failure is due to that of Coleman & Co, who had an interest in the firm besides being its agents and handling its products Coleman & Co are the principal creditors together with several eastern firms The liabilities and assets are not known Thomas D Carneal, president of the company refused to say anything, except that the directors had ordered an assignment.

The canneries opened in 1868 and incorporated in 1881 W T Coleman taking charge of the shipping business The firm had from 600 to 800 employes mostly women All kinds of fruit and vegetables were canned in it is estimated by outside parties that the liabilities will reach $200 000 Coleman & Co have endorsed much of the canning company's paper floated in the East The entire apricot crop and most of the peach crop of California have been contracted for, and if the cannery is closed serious results may entail It is thought, however, that the assignee will carry on the business until matters can be straightened out. This is said to be the largest cannery in the world

A HEAVY FIRE.

One Hundred and Fifty Men Thrown out of Employment.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 11.—A destructive fire occurred to-night at Fourth and Berry streets, near the Southern Pacific railroad, buildings It originated in the California cigar box factory, operated by Hooper, Hubbard & Company, and spread to the planing mill of Jewell Hooper & Company, Fair weather's sash and door factory, and the factory of Jesse & Drew, stair builders All of the buildings were entirely destroyed A number of other smaller buildings occupied as dwellings also burned

About 150 men will be thrown out of employment All of the buildings were owned by ex Judge H C Hastings The total loss is between sixty and seventy five thousand dollars and the insurance about one fourth of that amount

ADDITIONAL DETAILS

As all the buildings were wooden and the inner yards and spaces were filled with piles of light lumber the flames spread with lightning rapidity Thousands of persons flocked to the fire from every direction Locomotion on adjoining streets was difficult Before many arrived on the ground both Hubbard's and Jewell's together with Fair weather's and h lf the tenement houses on Higgins street, were destroyed and the attention of the firemen was turned to the furniture factory and coopergage especially although gallant efforts were made to save the remaining dwelling houses Flames had already attacked Fair s furniture factory at the inner end nearest Jewell s mills, the latter being by this time completely enveloped A stream of water was soon lashing the end of the burning building and as an instance of how close the firemen stuck to their work it may be stated that one of their coats caught fire and was burning brightly on his back without his knowledge

At the Berry end of Higgins street five or six houses were burnt on both sides of the latter thoroughfare and the firemen were plying axes on the doors of the remaining houses on the side nearer the fire so as to open up avenues for their horses They managed to save the walls of the structures referred to, but the roofs and back parts were destroyed together with much of the furniture of the inmates who had barely time to escape in their clothing so quickly did the flames spread

Hooper & Hubbard, cigar box manufacturers loss $30,000 insurance $5000 A Jewell, general saw and planing mills, loss $20 000 insurance $5000 Pope & Talbot lumber, loss $12 000 Fairweather sash and blind factory, loss $3000 to $4000 Insured Jesse & Drew stair builders loss $4000 insurance $500 California box factory, loss $8000, partly insured

Nine poor families occupying tenement houses lost most of their furniture The furniture factory of A Frie was damaged by water $4000

ARRIVAL OF THE ALBATROSS.

She Will Soon Proceed to Her Work in Northern Waters

SAN FRANCISCO, May 11.—Capt Tanner of the Albatross says he expects to get orders here regarding the future work of the ship The vessel will remain here, refitting, for at least a month, and then will doubtless go north, possibly along the South Alaskan coast. Special examination will be given to the fishing banks of the Pacific coast and the development of salt water fisheries. This has been the work of the Albatross on the Atlantic coast, and similar duty will be performed on this side

It is anticipated that the vessel will remain on this coast fully two years and perhaps three As Prof Lee puts it, "The Albatross will try to show, for the government what private individuals could not afford to work out for themselves"

During the voyage around thousands and thousands of fishes "as one of the scientists expressed it have been secured besides a large variety of birds and natural history specimens of various kinds This accumulated collection will be forwarded immediately to the national museum at Washington

THE LUMBER RING

According to the "Examiner" It is Entitled to No Protection.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 11.—To-day's Examiner contains a double leaded editorial on the subject of removing the duty on lumber It says: "The reason in this case are that the Pacific coast is held in the coup of a lumber ring Rough pine, which could be bought five years ago at $12 a thousand feet is now held at $22 50. The increase is five times the amount of duty, and wages remain the same Nobody pretends that the mill men have not taken the money and $15 the extra $10 50 is clear plunder except a small fraction which compensates the leaders for the difficulty of opening the more remote tracts The great bulk of it goes into the pockets of the lumber trust, and goes without obtaining any equivalent The Pacific states seem chained to the trust. A few weeks ago lumbermen sent a petition to the ways and means committee, protesting against removal of $2 duty, and saying that without protection California would be flooded with British Columbia lumber Three days later they raised the price $5 per thousand If the British Columbia people could have taken the market at the old price, without duty, they could now pay duty and still undersell the ring Why do they not do it?"

THE RESERVATION SETTLERS.

They Are Justly Dissatisfied With the Delay of the Authorities.

FORT BENTON, May 11.—Parties just arrived from the reservation report considerable dissatisfaction existing among the crowd of settlers who have been removed from the Big Sandy by the military authorities It seems that the act throwing open the reservation to settlement gave to the president the right of reserving such lands for the use of the military people as might be deemed necessary, and as he has not yet taken any action in the matter the commanding officer at Fort Assiniboine is endeavoring to maintain the old boundaries of the military reserve pending a decision from higher authorities as to what will be necessary to supply the wants of the post. The present boundaries include area of some 500 square miles, and it cannot for a moment be supposed that this arrangement will be other than temporary, until such time as the requirements of the military are made known at headquarters. The hay fields at the post are now being fenced in to protect them from being destroyed by the bands of cattle now grazing in that vicinity

PRIDE RULED IN DEATH.

The Man Who Cut His Throat Goes to the Grave With a Secret.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 11.—Charles Smith, who stated that he was a traveling man from Portland, and who cut his throat in the What Cheer house Tuesday, died at the county hospital to-day

Just before he died he said to an attendant at the hospital "My name is not Charles Smith I am not from Oregon and I am not a drummer"

When asked for his real name he declined to give it, saying, let the secret die with me"

There were no papers found in his room at the hotel by which he could be identified It is thought here that his first statement was correct, and that his denial of his identity was meant to deceive and to prevent his friends knowing that he took his own life He was a man of good address, gentlemanly appearance, and evidently of good family

Reunion of Quantrell's Old Band in Missouri.

RUMORS OF A GIGANTIC SCHEME

Methodist Ministers Rebuked—A Frightful Collision—High Water at Rock Island—Cyclone in Indiana

ST LOUIS May 11.—Sixteen of Quantrell's old band of guerillas had a reunion at Blue Springs, Mo to-day When the roll was called it was learned that but seventeen of the band besides those present are living—among them the famous Frank James Mrs Caroline Quantrell mother of the bloody chief, and now a resident of Canal Dover Ohio was present and answered for her son

The men spoke of their bloody murders and fiendish crimes without the slightest hesitancy, and as some particularly atrocious plot was unravelled by a good narrator a voice would break in with a correction or corroboration even anxious to be counted as one of the raiders The war was waged over in all its bloody fury fiendish cruelty and unrelenting hatred Men rivaled each other in their awful stories

This is the first reunion that has taken place since Quantrell's death in the Sisters' hospital at Louisville July 6, 1865 With the exception of two in Texas, and one in Colorado, all the survivors live in Missouri

A SENSATIONAL STORY.

Crediting the Santa Fe With a Great Transcontinental Scheme

NEW YORK, May 11.—An evening paper prints a story crediting the Santa Fe Railway Company with a scheme to purchase or lease the New York, Lake Erie & Western railway, and thus have a grand transcontinental line under its own management If the Erie people will not sell their road the Santa Fe company have decided, the paper's authority says to lease it. and in the event of their refusing to sell or lease the Santa Fe will immediately open a rate war and establish a $5 fare between Kansas City and California points, to compete with other roads, and compel them to combine against the Erie in favor of the Santa Fe company's wishes.

AN OFFICIAL DENIAL

BOSTON, May 11.—Secretary Manchester of the Santa Fe railway says the story that the company is trying to get control of the Erie is absolutely untrue

ACROSS CONTINENT WITHOUT CHANGE

NEW YORK May 11.—The Sun reports this evening that the Atchison railroad system is preparing to enter New York and that it has been decided by the Erie people not to sell their line, but to lease it for ninety nine years The Sun also says that if the scheme is successful the Atchison will run trains between this city and California without change

DENIED BY THE ERIE.

NEW YORK May 11.—The story current concerning the Atchison Company leasing the Erie railroad, in order to get entrance into New York, is pronounced a canard at the Erie offices The only foundation is that the two roads are very friendly since the purchase of the Erie Express Company by Wells, Fargo & Co's express

THE METHODIST CONFERENCE.

Members Censured for Reading Newspapers During Prayers

NEW YORK, May 11.—Bishop Bowman presided at the Methodist Episcopal conference to-day

Dr Elbert R Dette of California criticised members who read newspapers during prayer and Bishop Bowman did the same

There is to be a sensation when Bishop Taylor's report of his work in Africa is made He says his labors have been successful while his opponents claim that they have been a failure One of the African mission aries named Davenport, arrived yesterday and he will testify that the work has been far from successful Bishop Taylor will present his report to-morrow, and a motion will be made to refer it to the committee on episcopacy but the majority will vote to send it to the committee on missionaries

The foreign conference presented a paper asking for the establishment of a Norwegian and Swedish annual conference on the Pacific coast, which was referred to the proper committee

Several reports and resolutions were presented and referred to the proper committee, among them, one to the effect that the Methodist church north should appoint a committee of thirteen to meet a similar committee of the church south for the purpose of arranging a basis of union Adjourned

HIGH WATER AT ROCK ISLAND.

Heavy Loss of Property—People Driven from Their Homes.

ROCK ISLAND, Ills, May 12.—High water which has been running over the stone wall of the Moline water power for days, this afternoon carried away a large section of the huge stone bulkhead which runs across the south channel between the Rock Island arsenal and the main shore Five hundred feet of this wall disappeared, and it is believed the rest has been so badly disintegrated as to need rebuilding The wall cost the government $100,000

The tide of water coming to the city front of Rock Island caused it to undermine $8000 worth of logs from upper sawmills, and the freight warehouse of the St. Paul packet line All trains are abandoned on the St Paul road between here and Savanna, in consequence of floods, and on the Peoria on account of a long railway embankment which threatens to break and flood the lowlands Hundreds of families are moving out of their homes to-night

GALENA UNDER WATER

CHICAGO, May 11.—A Times special from Galena says The city of Galena has been transformed into an American Venice and the novel spectacle of skiffs and barges as means of transportation is now seen on all the business streets, except Main street On the east side of the latter thoroughfare water in many places is up to the first floor and preparations are being made by those endangered to move into safer quarters

CYCLONE IN INDIANA.

Brief Reports Indicate Great Destruction of Property.

CHICAGO May 11.—A cyclone of tremendous force swept over northern Indiana to night The telegraph wires throughout a considerable extent are prostrated, and the extent of its ravages can only be formed from a few scattering reports At Winslow siding, on the Nickel Plate railroad, a train of sixteen freight cars was lifted from the track and distributed across the surrounding prairie At Walnth a number of houses were unroofed It was thought that the city of Valparaiso lay in the path of the cyclone, and much alarm is felt

A later dispatch says Valparaiso was not touched The storm was deflected two miles from the south Three hundred telegraph poles were leveled in the neighborhood

A FRIGHTFUL COLLISION.

Many Passengers Injured, Two of Them Probably Fatally.

NEW YORK May 11.—A terrible collision occurred about 8 o'clock this morning just outside of Bergen Point, near Jersey City The Newark way train was standing a short distance from the tunnel waiting for the main line train, when the Orange express came around a curve and dashed into the Newark train, telescoping the rear cars The heavy locomotive cut its way into the rear car of the standing train crushing it to splinters and wrecking the cars in front The wildest panic arose among the passengers, but relief measures were immediately taken Two passengers were probably fatally injured, five others seriously and twenty badly bruised Some of the passengers who saw what was coming jumped in time to save themselves from injury The engineer and the fireman saved themselves by the same means The cries of the injured and the noise of escaping steam from the broken engine of the express drowned everything else and for a little time no one knew what had happened.

A COMPLICATED CONTEST.

Suit for Money Sent to Buy Arms for Colombian Rebels.

NEW YORK, May 11.—In February, 1886, while an insurrection was in progress in the United States of Colombia, Col. Benj A Gilan came to this country with $80,000 subscribed by rebels, with which to purchase arms and munitions. He placed the funds in the hands of Santiago, Perez Triana & Co, brokers The colonel commissioned the steamer City of Mexico and loaded her with arms The vessel was seized by the government Then Gilan bought the steamer Ardel, and he was about to send her down to his country when he learned that the rebels had been defeated He then demanded the balance of the money from Triana who refused to give it up The Colombian government heard of these funds and began suit against both Gilan and Triana This action came to trial in the supreme court to day Plaintiff claims that he is entitled to all the funds that remain Gilan denies that he has any money and that of the money paid by Triana & Co he is entitled to 25 per cent for his expenses and salary The case was adjourned until Friday the 18th instant

A POLITICAL SENSATION

Salisbury Assails the Conduct of Gen. Wolseley.

SIGNS OF IMPENDING DANGER

The Question of England's Defense the Cause of a Serious Breach Between the Ministry and the Military.

LONDON May 11.—In the house of lords today Viscount Harrington asked what truth was in the reports that England was in a defenseless condition, etc

The Duke of Cambridge denied that the country was in immediate danger and said the government was fully alive to the importance of reforming and strengthening the defensive lines

Lord Salisbury protested against the premature impression that because the government did not make showy speeches their vigilance slept The government must practice the utmost reticence in such matters Nothing would be more insane than to explain to all the world what was England's strength and the nature of the precautions she was taking The fact was, there had been a considerable increase of preparations in recent years since 1884 both the army and the navy had been much strengthened The army has been increased from 181 217 men of all arms to 212,470 men while expenditures for the navy have risen from £14 460 000 to £16 141 000 He complained high military authorities were making statements against the government at public banquets where they could not be answered General Lord Wolseley he said, had recently declared that the reason the army and the navy were not so strong as they ought to be was to be found in the system of government by party which was the curse of England depriving English statesmen of manly honesty General Wolseley ought to have made that statement in parliament, where he could be answered

In the commons Lord George Hamilton, first lord of admiralty was questioned regarding the report that the strength of the Russian squadron in the Pacific was superior to that of the English squadron in those waters In reply he stated that the Russian fleet consisted of one iron-clad and four cruisers and was not equal, either in numbers or in strength to the British force on the China station alone

LONDON May 11.—Lord Salisbury's speech in the lords this evening has caused a sensation in political and military circles The attack upon General Lord Wolseley was wholly unexpected The general opinion is that Lord Wolseley will resign after replying to the premier The liberals are inclined to support Lord Wolseley's position which is approved by all the military members of the commons

GOING STRAIGHT TO PARLIAMENT

LONDON May 11.—The duke of Cambridge, Gen Lord Wolseley, Gen Sir Butler and other officers held a long private discussion in the war office to day It was reported that they decided to propose to parliament to immediately place the first and Second army corps on a war footing, and issue magazine rifles to all the regular troops, that a special committee be formed to attend to stores necessary for field service and that a volunteer artillery corps be sent to Portsmouth to be drilled in the use of guns of large calibre

THE 'STANDARD" DEFENDS WOLSELEY

LONDON May 11.—The Standard defends Gen Wolseley It says He may or his anxieties, and so may all patriotic citizens, without committing extreme offense but to confront and impeach in parliament the government he serves would be an inexcusable breach of sound tradition Lord Salisbury's warmth was perhaps excusable, although not quite fair to Gen Wolseley, or to the people, who are sick of eternal commonplaces and official optimism"

AN ASSURANCE

That Irish Affairs Will Not Be Injuriously Affected by the Pope's Rescript.

DUBLIN, May 11.—Archbishop Walsh, in a letter to the Freeman's Journal in reference to the papal rescript condemning the plan of campaign and boycotting, says "The rescript decides a question of morals, not of politics. If doubt and controversies arise concerning its meaning Irish bishops of the Vatican will explain it The Irish people may be assured that neither the national movement nor the national league shall be in the least injuriously affected." The archbishop strongly denies the truth of statements about his own actions in respect to the rescript. He says reports of his conferences at Rome with the pope were all inventions The Catholic Weekly Herald says the government will found and endow an Irish Catholic university.

ATTITUDE OF THE IRISH BISHOPS.

DUBLIN, May 11.—The Irish Times (liberal conservative) says At a meeting of Irish Catholic bishops Wednesday, to consider the pontifical rescript, it was resolved that the principles of the rescript which might be good from a philosophical, theological or political point of view, must be considered in connection with local circumstances Therefore, while treating the rescript with every respect they felt bound to communicate with the holy see in regard to it.

IRISH SELF-GOVERNMENT.

The Restrictions that Lord Carnarvon Would Place Upon It.

LONDON, May 11.—Lord Carnarvon, in reply to Parnell explains the point of his idea of a proper basis for Irish self-government as follows

First—Supremacy of the crown and imperial parliament in ultimate resort

Second—Control of the police and appointment of the judiciary by the crown

Third—Limitation of local taxation to such an extent as to prevent injustice

Fourth—Reasonable satisfying of the people of Ulster.

Fifth—The whole to be preceded by some land settlement

To these Carnarvon says, must be added separation of the legislative and executive functions He details very fully the difficulties of such a scheme, but right or wrong he says the scheme is utterly impossible now Gladstone having destroyed all chance of reasonable settlement on such a basis

Lord Carnarvon then deals with the crown colony idea in similar detail, and gives his opinion that though the plan is a difficult one, it is not impossible He says his ideas are solely his own and his late colleagues are in no way responsible for them.

[illegible] Little woman who has gone [illegible] a great deal of trouble which has [illegible] on her hair and in the expres- [illegible] eyes. She explained the reason [illegible] was some trivial matter, [illegible] very precise and ac- [illegible] allegations of cruelty. [illegible] story was as follows: [illegible] and Emma came that Mon- [illegible] the little girl came to Mrs. [illegible] that the boy was waiting [illegible] Emma to tell it would be all right, [illegible] Buck went out [illegible] surprised that [illegible] in after what you [illegible] fellow, and I [illegible] When he re- [illegible] fused I took him by the arm and tried to lead him in, but he began to kick and fight. I then took him in my arms to pinion him so he could not do anything. I took him not ungently, not angrily by the arms and not by the neck, and placed him on the wood box the better to hold him. I did not strike him, or knock him against anything. Finding he was too much for me, I asked Miss Anderson, who was standing at the door, to call Mr. Rigler. When he came down he took Clarence off up to his office. When Clarence came down, he asked my forgiveness and seemed happy and light-hearted all the afternoon. I called on Mrs. Blagen to try and settle things amicably. I asked her what she wanted me to say and she said: 'Whatever your heart tells you to say.' I then said: 'What shall my heart dictate?' She hesitated a moment and replied 'that you have been hasty and overstepped your authority.' I could not do that for I felt as if I would be stultifying myself, so I had to report to Mr. Rigler that I had failed. I have done nothing for which I am sorry, for under similar circumstances I would do the same thing over again, nor do I feel guilty."

Miss Anderson then testified: "I was on hall duty that day, and hearing the child crying, I stepped to the door of the cloak room and saw Mrs. Buck with the boy struggling on the box. I saw all that happened, I think. Mrs. Buck was cool and collected, but was having a hard time of it. She asked me to call Mr. Rigler and I did so."

Miss Cooper, another teacher, said: "I saw most of the affair from the door of my room. Mrs. Buck looked very much exhausted. It was the cries of the child that attracted my notice first."

Miss Bridgeford, another teacher, testified as follows. "I was on duty in the north hall and had stopped to speak to a lady, when I heard sounds of the struggle and crying. From where I stood I could see Mrs. Buck holding the little boy as a mother would her child, close in her arms. She was speaking to him in a calm motherly way, while he was kicking and crying. I heard some one ask her what was the matter; she turned and, smiling, said, 'A runaway pupil.' She seemed weak and as if she was much exhausted."

Miss Hill, another lady teacher, said: "I was up stairs in Mr. Rigler's room, and hearing the noise, I stepped out and going down the stairs I saw only the skirts of Mrs. Buck as she was struggling with a boy. As I got to the bottom of the stairs I saw Mrs. Buck coming from the cloakroom, laughing, with her apron in her hand. She said: 'I had all I could do to manage him.' I told her the next time she wanted to do anything like that to call me.

Mr. Rigler's testimony was merely corroborative of Mrs. Buck's story and of the minor points in the testimony of the various witnesses.

VERDICT OF ACQUITTAL.

At a late hour the board came to a unanimous verdict exonerating Mrs. Buck from any infringement of sections 63, 64 and 65 of the rules and regulations adopted December 2, 1887.

THE CAMPAIGN AT OREGON CITY.

Three Political Speeches and a County Convention in One Day.

Thursday was a political gala day for Oregon City. Besides the county prohibition convention there was speech-making in the afternoon by Gov. Pennoyer, who addressed the democrats and divided the time with Prof. G. M. Miller, the prohibition candidate for congress.

In the evening Hon. George H. Williams addressed the voters of the county in the interests of the republican party. The audience which welcomed him was much larger than that drawn together by the combined eloquence of Gov. Pennoyer and Prof. Miller. The governor had in his speech bewailed the condition of the poor man, and declared that the democratic party would help him to better times. Judge Williams felt called upon to reply in the evening that the governor was not noted for practicing what he preached. Although he was worth a good many thousand dollars it yet remained to become a matter of record that the governor had in his capacity as private citizen ever done anything toward ameliorating the condition of the poor.

Another gentleman who came down says Prof. Miller is a very fluent speaker, his discourse being enlivened with amusing anecdotes, but without much solidity—a glittering, evanescent style of oratory, forgotten as soon as heard. Gov. Pennoyer, he said, made a very smooth, pleasant but fallacious speech. He addressed himself to the farmers and laboring class, and his effort was to show that the tariff was a great burden to them. He assumed, as the basis of his argument, what was not true in point of fact, and his reasoning was sophistical and his conclusions contradicted by the experience of this country.

In the evening Hon. Geo. H. Williams spoke to a packed house. He had listened to the other speakers and proceeded in his usual logical and forcible manner to demolish the entire breastwork of sophistry which had been elaborately constructed. When the fiery and brilliant orator Hayne made his great speech in the U. S. senate in opposition to Daniel Webster, the latter was asked how he proposed to answer what appeared to be such invincible argument. "I shall pulverize him," exclaimed the immortal sage of Marshfield in his leonine voice. And history says he kept his word. The expression "pulverize" applies with singular fitness to what Judge Williams did to his political opponents.

THE TACOMA HOTEL.

What It Has Done to Promote the Growth of That Town.

P. B. Johnson, editor of the Walla Walla Union, who recently took a trip to California, in an article published a few days ago, spoke of hotels there and the part they bear in producing the rapid development of California towns; and he referred also to the hotel at Tacoma in terms that may be commended to the business men and property owners of Portland who are so slow about subscribing to the stock necessary for the hotel here. We quote part of the article:

As yet the idea of building elegant and comfortable hotels for the use of the traveler and those residents who like hotel life has not permeated the country north of San Francisco, and the result is that the tourist, charmed though he may be by the scenery and inspired by the balmy air, does not tarry because the buildings that do duty as hotels are barn-like in architecture and their surroundings are dirty and repulsive.

This condition of affairs exists until Puget sound is reached, where the comforts and conveniences of The Tacoma remind one of a well appointed private residence, lull the weary to rest, restore the stomach, sickened by "the hog and hominy" diet obtained at the eating houses, and make the tourist feel like investing in a country which affords such a perfect source of comfort and pleasure. There is no reason to doubt that a million or more dollars have been invested in the City of Destiny by tourists who have been refreshed and made happy at The Tacoma, who would otherwise have passed through the place, leaving no greater trace of their visit than they do when they go through Portland. The Tacoma has been the first cause of more investments on Puget sound than all other things combined.

BECAUSE IT'S A FREE SHOW.

The Morrison Street Menagerie Drawing Large Crowds Daily.

The free menagerie on Morrison street draws such crowds that iron bars have been placed across the front to keep people from pushing through the wire netting. The young eagles are doing well and beginning to show feathers through their down, and when not bolting chunks of beef, put in the time screaming for more. The two fluffy owls which are accustomed to spend their days in dark, shady places, do not like the bright sunshine, and pout and puff furiously when it falls on them.

The ducks, wild geese and swan appear to enjoy life and were all seen at one time yesterday standing around the tank, each on one leg with his bill tucked under his wing. Just what pleasure these birds can derive from standing on one leg it is hard to understand. The fish in the tank remain too much at the bottom to suit the little ones, who yell with delight when a catfish or sucker shows its nose at the surface. A small sturgeon and a salmon or two should be put in the tank.

There is no article in the line of medicines that gives so large a return for the money as a good porous strengthening plaster, such as Carter's Smart Weed and Belladonna Backache Plasters.

FALLACY OF FREE SHIPS.

Capt. Allen Noyes Sets Forth Some Straightforward Arguments.

Why Ships Belonging to Other Nations Make Money and American Vessels Do Not—The Foreign Subsidies.

PORTLAND, May 11.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN:

Noticing an article in the commercial column of your issue of April 11 headed "A Good Argument," I had intended to reply to it earlier, but other matters prevented and it had nearly escaped my memory, till I read our respected governor's speech delivered at Pendleton on the 1st inst., in which he slightly touched upon the same subject, viz., our shipping interests. An answer to one is in part an answer to both, and I will endeavor to answer them as briefly as I may. To answer both of the arguments of the two gentlemen, viz., Capt. J. Codman, who is in favor of free ships, and Governor Pennoyer that protection has killed ship building—I say, to answer both effectually, and fully elucidate the subject—would compel me to go to the very foundation of political economy, as far as our shipping interests are concerned, for which I have not time, nor would I dare to trespass upon your kindness so far as to ask for sufficient space in your columns to do so; as it would take many long articles, and I should have to look up many authorities and make many long quotations from both American and English writers on the shipping interests of different countries. Capt. Codman starts out by first saying that in times past when the cost of ships was equal, although our wages were always as much higher than those of the English as they are now, we were gaining upon them in tonnage. And he attributed our present misfortune entirely (mind you entirely) to our inability to own ships on equal terms with foreigners. Now let us inquire, when was the time that England could build ships as cheap as the Americans during the reign of wooden ships? (for that was the time we gained on her in tonnage.) Not since I have known anything about ships.

In 1849 England passed her free ship act and at once commenced to buy our ships. What did she buy our ships for if she could build as cheap as she could buy from us? Were our ships better than she could build? She said they were not so good. Now there must have been a reason for buying our ships. What was that reason? I will let Capt. Codman answer that question and if he can't answer it satisfactorily to himself he can inquire of the Clyde ship builders, who he visits so frequently (as I have heard) and if they can't answer him he may read the writings of the Hon. Mr. Lindsay, who is most excellent authority on British shipping, and he may also learn something from Mr. Grantham, British historian.

So much for the cost of ships. Capt. C. thinks our misfortunes entirely due to our inability to own ships on equal terms with foreigners. Well, I must say he gives us credit for being a smart people. I have always thought we might manage to carry the horse, but to carry the horse and rider both is a little too heavy a burden for the smart Yankee.

How in the name of common sense, I ask, can we compete with foreign nations in the carrying trade of the ocean with British plant laid sufficient to build ships for nearly or quite all the world, and she paying her mail service to all parts of the world such a sum as shall guarantee a dividend not to exceed 8 per cent. per annum on the whole stock? That was the substance of their contract in 1880, and for aught I have ever learned is the same to-day with the Royal Mail Company, which did not pay its expenses that year by $5000, but still declared the 8 per cent. dividend.

To this add France, Germany, Spain and Italy, all of whom pay a bounty to all their ships in some way, more or less. Italy pays a bonus for building and 65 cents per ton for every 1000 miles sailed to all ships, both sail and steam, till the steamship is ten years old and to the sailing-ship till she is fifteen years old. France pays a bonus for building and about 29 cents a ton per 1000 miles sailed. I have never seen the text of the German law, therefore do not know how much bounty she does pay; but it is so much that her steam lines have entered into sharp competition with the British mail steamers, and, as I am informed, have this year succeeded in getting one of their routes from them.

With such competition we cannot get any dividends from our ships that are already paid for, and many despairing of getting any help from government are selling off their ships for just what they can get, as witness the Wm. H. Starbuck, sold here for about $27,500, a ship richly worth $40,000 if we could have equal terms to compete on.

Much more might be said to prove the fallacy of the free ship argument, but I shall be trespassing on your space, so I will let the above suffice for this time and pass to the next remarks of Capt. C., who says a steamship can be built in England 30 per cent. cheaper than our ship builders would build them here, and that owing to overproduction, a new ship could be bought in England 20 per cent. less than her actual cost; thus a ship that could be bought there for $500,000 would cost here $1,000,000, he says. By what new rule does he compute, to make 50 per cent. added to $500,000 amount to $1,000,000? But that is just about as logical and near right as other parts of his argument, and I leave it without further comment.

Capt. C. next asked if it would not be better to let an American use his own money to buy a cheap ship than to beg for other people's money to sail a dear one. I ask what is the difference whether a ship costs $40,000 or $60,000 if she can't pay her running expenses? It is in sailing the ship that the trouble lies, not in the extra cost, for we can build first-class wooden ships cheaper than iron first-class ships can be built anywhere, and with the assistance to promote ship building and sailing that other nations have given to their shipping interests, we could soon build iron ships as cheaply as others. With the plant once laid American ingenuity and inventive powers for labor-saving machines would soon overcome the difference in the cost of labor, as it did when all nations built wooden ships. The Hon. Mr. Lindsay said in his writings on shipping, that twenty men could do as much work on board an American ship as thirty could do on an English ship, and with more ease to themselves, and it was owing to their various improvements. But I am extending this article further than I expected, still I have not mentioned a tithe of the arguments against free ships.

A letter from an old friend in the East, nearly two years ago, informed me that the aggregate of all their ships' earnings in that town that year would not pay the taxes on ships belonging there.

Again I ask, what is the use of buying ships even at Capt. Codman's low figures with such a showing as that? And that is not an isolated case by any means. It is not the ship builders alone, or the ship owners, or a few old worn out captains like myself, that are asking for aid to our shipping interests, but the people who are waking up to the loss of this great economic industry, and the dependent position we shall be placed in if our shipyards are allowed to fall into decay. Who would build our naval ships for us? And where should we find crews to man them unless we have a large mercantile marine? Should we get naval ships of foreign build, and foreigners to man them? But some argue we could build our own navy. The answer to that is it would cost much more to keep up sufficient navy yards to build all the naval ships we should need in a nation like ours, than it would to subsidize all the ships we require to carry productions to market and bring home our imports.

If the free ship bill becomes a law we shall be wholly and totally dependent upon foreigners to do our ocean carrying trade before ten years have passed. No man that has had any experience in the cost of sailing ships will buy ships even at half price to sail against the subsidized ships of the world. Our old ship builders and our ship yards will soon pass away. No young ship builders are taking their places, and our ships are fast disappearing from the ocean.

After our ships have dwindled to a minimum, suppose the great commercial nations of the world get into a great maritime war (not at all an unlikely thing to occur) and be obliged to call home their ships and leave us to get our surplus productions to market with our few ships left, what would be the consequences? Our productions would remain in our warehouses, prices would recede, money become stringent, and such a panic as the world never saw would be inaugurated in less than ninety days throughout the whole land, and a thousand times more injury would be done to the country than it would cost to subsidize our ships a few years, till they could prove whether it would be a paying investment or not.

But we need not wait for the future to prove the benefit of subsidy if we take either foreign or our own proof already in existence. Right on our own coast we have ample proof. The Pacific Mail Company received in ten years—from 1868 to 1877—a subsidy of $4,583,333 33, and returned to the government in increased duties, tonnage tax, duties on coal consumed, etc., $6,391,593 05, an actual gain to the government of $1,808,259 72, and besides that, this company had diverted much of the travel that went through the Suez canal, to this coast, and was fast getting more; but a freak of economy seized upon congress at that time and the subsidy was stopped. Mark the result: the P. & O. Steamship Company, plying through the Suez canal, lowered their freights so the Pacific Mail Company could not pay the transportation across this continent and compete without the subsidy, and the trade went back into its old channel. Thus we lost this great income and this great trade. Other cases might be cited, but time and space will not allow.

Capt. Codman next says: It is a sorry spectacle to see these ship owners on their knees asking for charity, instead of standing up like men and demanding their rights. I answer, it is a much more sorry sight to see an American standing up before his own countrymen and asking them to give away one of their greatest economic industries to foreign people, thereby injuring the future interests and welfare of his own country.

I would like to write much more but again I fear I have taken up too much space already, and will close by replying to our respected governor, who thinks the high tariff prevents us from building ships as cheaply as they can build them in New Brunswick, and as that same argument has been advanced before regarding the cost of our ships I will just say, there is no duty on a single article that enters into the building or repairing of our ships that go in the foreign trade or that do not go in the coasting trade more than two months in the year, and the same is the case with ships trading between the Atlantic and Pacific states and territories.

Again the New Brunswick ships are not built of near as good or costly wood as ours are They build mostly of spruce, hemlock and some hackmatack. We build mostly of white oak, yellow or hard pine and hackmatack. Their ships rate from seven to nine years, ours from eleven to thirteen years. Their ships are mostly very roughly and cheaply finished, ours are mostly of fine and costly finish, and our ships are superior to theirs in most every way. I have visited their shipyards and know that such work as I have seen done in them would not be tolerated in ours. Hoping you will excuse me for the amount of space I am asking, and thanking you for the same and for past favors, I will close by saying a thousand pages would not exhaust the subject.

ALLEN NOYES.

THE REPUBLICANS UNITED.

Judge Williams Gives His Opinion of the Outlook in the Campaign.

Hon. Geo. H. Williams on being asked yesterday what he considered the outlook for the republican party in this state at the coming election, said:

"In any canvass I have made in this state I have never found the republicans more united and enthusiastic than at this time. They are unanimous in supporting the state nominations, and generally, as far as I can learn, there is very little dissatisfaction with the county nominations. In my opinion the democrats are making a special effort to elect their legislative ticket so as to secure the United States senator, and are organizing third parties in counties where the republicans have small majorities, but the republicans are awake to their efforts and they will be unsuccessful.

"I have conversed with a number of representative republicans in regard to their preference for a nomination at the Chicago convention, and although some are quite friendly to Blaine I believe the prevailing sentiment among republicans is that the nomination of Judge Gresham is the best nomination that could be made by that convention, and I concur in that opinion."

"What is your idea about the prohibition vote?"

"My opinion is that the whole vote will not be any larger than it was two years ago, and it is doubtful if it is as large. A number of avowed prohibitionists in Clackamas county, where I have just been, say that they will support the republican ticket."

TANNERY COMPANY INCORPORATED.

Work of Construction to be Commenced at Once—The Location.

As anticipated by THE OREGONIAN, articles of incorporation by the Portland Tannery Company were filed with the county clerk yesterday, the incorporators being Herbert Bradley, George B. Markle, Jr., Joseph Doheny, J. L. Hartman, Herman Metzgar. The capital stock is fixed at $15,000, divided into 150 shares. The company will engage in the manufacture of all kinds of leather and all products thereof, and deal in hides and skins.

This is an enterprise which has long been needed here and has been much talked about. A great number of hides are shipped from this place every season, and a great deal of leather imported here. This season the prices obtained for hides has not been so good as usual, as one butcher states that his receipts from hides have been $3000 less than last year. The company intend to commence the erection of a tannery at once in the gulch east of the second bridge on First street, and expect to have it completed within a month. Besides tanning all kinds of fine leathers and glove stock, the company will probably engage in the manufacture of buckskin gloves, for which there is a large local demand.

NEWS FROM THE EAST SIDE

The O Street Cannery to Begin Operations Next Week.

Resignation of a Pastor and Appropriate Resolutions by his Congregation—Store Robbed—Personal and General.

Work will commence in the O street cannery next Monday. There will not be much to do before June 1, when full operations will be commenced. The only thing to work on next week will be gooseberries. It was stated yesterday by a representative of the cannery that when in operation the institution will be taxed to its utmost capacity to fill orders. It is likely that a great many strawberries will be put up in the cannery this year. It is not known whether the Water street cannery will be run this year or not, but it is thought not. This much has been reported. The contracts with the farmers for produce have been canceled and some of the tools have been disposed of. There is ample field for two canneries on the east side. The country extending eastward and beyond Mount Tabor is a magnificent country for producing in abundance the best quality of strawberries, blackberries, raspberries, prunes, plums and cherries in the world. What is produced on the section described is sufficient to supply a cannery.

PASTOR RESIGNS.

Rev. Daniel W. Staver, who has been the pastor of the First Congregational church in Holladay's addition for three years, has tendered his resignation. His successor has not been selected, nor is it yet settled where Mr. Staver will go. He has been an enthusiastic worker and under his pastorate the church has greatly prospered. At the board meeting Thursday the following resolutions were unanimously adopted:

WHEREAS, Our loved pastor Daniel W. Staver, deems it wise and best to leave this charge and seek a new field of labor;

WHEREAS, We recognize that during his stay with us he has labored earnestly and steadfastly to build up the church, and to advance the cause of Christ; that these efforts have been graciously and abundantly blessed by the addition of sixty-six members to the church; that by his advice, solicitation and individual genero-ity the sum of $961 45 in cash, material and labor, has been raised for the purpose of building the much-needed addition to our church, in which we are now assembled;

WHEREAS, We desire to express our entire appreciation of his earnest devotion to the Master's work while pastor of this church;

Resolved, That we, the members and friends of the First Congregational church of East Portland, Or., do hereby tender our thanks and gratitude to Mr. and Mrs. Staver for their conscientious and untiring efforts to advance the Christian work among us; that our hope and prayers shall be for their success and happiness in their new field of labor.

STORE ROBBED.

Thursday night the hardware store on the corner of Fourth and N streets was entered by thieves and about $20 worth of cutlery taken. Mr. W. B. Hall, the proprietor, when he came down yesterday morning, missed the articles, and on examination it was found that the store had been entered through the back window. The thief had broken out a pane of glass and then with a file unfastened the window and entered the store in that way. T. W. West, who has the dry-goods store in the next room, came to the building about 11 at night, and it is thought the robbers were at that time in Mr. Hall's department, but were frightened away by Mr. West's coming. Mr. Hall has been in business only about six weeks, and it was very unkind that he should have been singled out when there are many older firms in East Portland.

UNCLE JIMMY STEPHENS.

Uncle "Jimmy" Stephens, called the founder of East Portland, is said to be considerably improved. He has been confined to his bed pretty much ever since the death of his wife which happened about six months ago, but with the warm days he has brightened up very much. He has been able to get out of bed and sit up. Uncle Jimmy is very cheerful and takes quite an interest in everything that pertains to the welfare of East Portland. He is over 82 years of age, but the same undauntable spirit that characterized his younger days now crops out in his struggle with the grim reaper.

LOCATION UNCHANGED.

The meeting announced for the Mt. Tabor school directors came off, and it was voted that the location of the new school house should remain unchanged and the building will be put up on the old grounds unless the action should yet be reconsidered, which is very improbable. Those who desired to change the location wanted to put the new building on a two-acre piece of ground where there was plenty of pure water and a fine place for the rear building, and as they also had raised $1000 the district would not be out anything by the change.

FORTY HOURS ADORATION.

To-morrow, Sunday, at 10:30 A. M., the forty hours adoration begins at St. Francis church. His grace, Archbishop Gross, will assist pontifically at the solemn high mass, during which his grace will preach. After the solemn mass the blessed sacrament will be carried in procession through the church.

WILLAMETTES AT SEATTLE.

The Willamette base ball club went to Seattle yesterday where they will play the Seattle club to-day and to-morrow. They were in good spirits and will play to win. It is probable they will succeed in arranging for the Seattle club to come and play on the new grounds over here.

NOTES.

Dr. N. H. Clark received a dispatch yesterday from Topeka, Kansas, containing the intelligence of the dangerous sickness of his nephew. He leaves for Topeka this morning.

Be on hand at Johnson's wharf 7:45 this this morning to attend the M. E. Sunday school excursion to Oak Island.

The steamer Bently is having a new boiler put in. She is moored between the bridge and the box factory.

Ex-Gov. Woods will speak at Mount Tabor this evening in place of Rufus Mallory, who has gone to Seattle.

Mr. Otto Kleeman will move into his fine new residence on Fourteenth street to-day.

Some repairing is needed on the roadway between Third and Fourth on L street.

Irving Watson has accepted a position with the Home Mutual in Portland.

BIT THE OTHER MAN'S THUMB.

A Rough and Tumble Country Fight Gets Into the Courts.

Jack Nelson was examined before Justice Bushwiler yesterday afternoon on a charge of mayhem preferred by Edward Norcross. From the testimony adduced, it appears that both men engaged in a rough and tumble fight Thursday, and during its continuance Norcross's thumb and finger got into Nelson's mouth and were considerably maimed. Both men live out on the Powell valley road. The row originated over young Norcross claiming that Nelson had made some insulting remark to his sister. Nelson claims that he never made the remark.

The court discharged the man on the mayhem count, but considered the affair an aggravated case of assault and battery, and that it should go to the grand jury. He ordered that Nelson be so held.

Thereupon counsel for defense made a counter complaint of assault and battery against Norcross. Most of the afternoon was consumed in the affair, and finally the court continued both cases till to-day at 1:30 o'clock, and required the defendant to give $50 bonds.

FAR FROM BEING INSANE.

A Man Who Ought to Know Tells of His Mental Condition.

Michael Cramer, a German, who has been a resident of Kalama, W. T., for many years past, called at this office last evening to deny a report, which has been current in Kalama for several days, that he was insane. Mr. Cramer sold his farm at Kalama about a month ago and came to Portland. He took a bad cold, and like a sensible man, instead of getting worse at a hotel, he went to St. Vincent's hospital for a week. This is presumed to be the nucleus from which the story of his insanity arose.

After leaving the hospital he purchased a fine piece of property near Oswego, from which he has contracted to deliver to the Iron works 3000 cords of wood, and already has ten men employed cutting it. The report at Kalama was that all his money had been stolen from him, which had unseated his reason. Mr. Cramer thinks his money is pretty safe, although he paid a good big price for the property he bought. He has many friends at Kalama, and takes this means of informing them of his continued prosperity. He thinks the story of his insanity was the work of an enemy, a man who was mean enough to steal the goose feathers from Mr. Cramer's bed while he was away from home about a year ago.

THE TABERNACLE.

Efforts to Raise Money to Have the Building Moved and Preserved.

As yet nothing has been definitely determined with reference to what disposition will be made of the Tabernacle. Efforts are being made to raise funds sufficient to defray the expense of moving the building to some other location, and to make the needed repairs. Hopes are entertained that the necessary funds can be raised, but there are some doubts about it. Three weeks or more will be allowed the Tabernacle Association to make arrangements. One gentleman remarked to a reporter yesterday:

"We are going to do all we can to raise the money for this purpose, and if it is possible, we shall do so I shall be able to give you something more definite in a few days."

NOTICE OF RECEIVER'S SALE—NOTICE IS hereby given that pursuant to a decree of the circuit court of the United States for the district of Oregon, entered April 21, 1888, in a cause therein pending wherein Albert G. Bogert et. al. are plaintiffs and Joseph Holladay, executor, substituted for Ben. Holladay, deceased, et al., are defendants, the undersigned, receiver therein, will offer for sale to the highest bidder for cash, in Portland, Multnomah county, Oregon, at the door of the county court house of said county, at 10 o'clock A. M. of Thursday, May 31 1888, ten thousand, being all the shares of the capital stock of the Oregon Real Estate Company. The stock will be offered for sale in lots of five hundred shares each, and will be sold to the highest bidders respectively, upon this understanding and condition, to-wit: That after the stock shall be declared sold, the party to said the stock will be offered for sale in one lot of ten thousand shares, and will be sold to the highest bidder therefor, in case his bid for the stock as a whole exceeds the aggregate amount of the bids for the stock when offered in lots as aforesaid; but if the bid for the stock as a whole does not exceed the aggregate amount of the bids for the stock when offered in lots as aforesaid, then the stock will be declared sold to the respective bidders for the several lots of stock.

Dated Portland, Oregon, April 24, 1888.

G. G GAMMANS, Receiver.

The property owned by the Oregon Real Estate Company, and which is represented by the stock of said company to be sold as above set forth, consists principally of about fourteen hundred lots, fifty by one hundred feet each, situated in the choicest residence portion of the city of East Portland. That part of the property adjacent to the eastern terminus of the new iron bridge between Portland and East Portland will soon be desirable for business purposes, while the high level land extending for a mile back from the river offers chances for homes that will be eagerly seized upon when the land is offered for sale in lots and blocks. A year ago three of the leading real estate dealers of Portland appraised this property at over a half million of dollars, and since then it has advanced considerably in value. This stock is to be sold to pay off $250,000 claims against the estate of Ben Holladay. 24a35

PORTLAND, SATURDAY, MAY 19.

THE PLAIN, SIMPLE ISSUE.

It still appears to be one of the delusions of the democratic paper at Pendleton that the republican ticket of Multnomah county is "running" in Umatilla county. Now we kindly advise that paper once more that the effort it is making in Umatilla to beat the republican ticket in Multnomah will disappoint it. The republicans will carry Multnomah county, as heretofore, by from one thousand to two thousand majority, and all the worry of the democratic paper of Pendleton will not make the difference of a single vote in the result.

So, in advising the defeat of the republican party in Multnomah on the assumption that its ticket does not represent the interests either of the county or of the state, the democratic paper at Pendleton is merely silly and preposterous. It is not unlikely that the people of Multnomah, who are going to elect this ticket by a great majority, deem their own judgment as to the interests of their county and of the state quite as good as that of the democratic partisan organ of Umatilla, whose extreme zeal in this matter springs from its desire to turn the United States senate over to democratic control and to commit the state of Oregon to Grover Cleveland.

These are things very dear to the intensely anxious democratic heart of Umatilla, no doubt, but they are not considerations that will prevail with republicans in Multnomah county, or in any other county. Nor is the democratic organ of Umatilla doing anything to make them prevail, by its ridiculous assertions that "the republican leaders in this state, including Dolph and the Portland bosses, are opposed to an open river," or that "Dolph has really done whatever he could to defeat it." For these are empty assertions inspired by intense eagerness for democratic success. No other county has as much to gain from an open river as Multnomah, and Multnomah does not elect representatives who take it upon themselves to oppose or disregard her material interests. As to Dolph, it is not a question whether he is to be re-elected or not. The legislature will settle that. It is a question, however, whether the state is to send a republican or a democrat to the senate; whether the United States senate is to be held by the republicans or surrendered to the democrats. Nobody is so green as not to see that this is the anxious question with the democratic organ at Pendleton, which question, however, it tries to conceal under spurious show of zeal for an open river. Dolph has in fact done all in his power for an open river. Every one knows that no man could have done more. If Cleveland had not defeated Dolph's work hitherto, the problem of an open river would be nearer a solution than it is.

"A vote for the republican party is a vote against an open river." Let us put it in another way: A vote for the democratic party is a vote for Grover Cleveland, and a vote for Grover Cleveland is a vote for the man who has stopped work on the river for a year past. But the democratic organ at Pendleton says that "Cleveland is not an issue in the June election." We judge that Cleveland is not so much mistaken as this assertion would imply. He evidently thinks he is "an issue," since he sent a man out here with the platform, so as to be sure of an "endorsement" for himself, has laid civil service reform on the shelf while his agents and office-holders are exerting themselves to the utmost in the canvass, and will have his ear to the ground when his convention assembles at St. Louis, hoping to hear just at that time that he is "endorsed" by the vote of Oregon and that his party has won the state, the representative, the senator and the United States senate, and that he has a promise of its electoral vote for himself.

These are the real issues of the present canvass. The republicans of Oregon will not overlook nor forget them, nor will they allow fictitious issues to be substituted for them. It is an old story—these devices to mask a real purpose. "So glozed the tempter and his preamt tuned."

GRESHAM.

Illinois casts forty-four votes in the national republican convention, and will cast them all for Gresham. The following extract from the Illinois platform sets forth the esteem that Gresham is held in by his great adopted state:

> The needed change of administration can be accomplished by selection of a candidate whose courage, character, and record command universal confidence and will concentrate the united and enthusiastic support of the whole republican party. We must have an aggressive, not a defensive, campaign. For a leader in such a campaign we turn with one accord to Walter Q. Gresham. In the opinion of this convention, he is the best and most available candidate to lead the republican party to victory in the coming presidential election.

Besides the vote of Illinois, Judge Gresham is promised the support of Wisconsin, Minnesota and Nebraska. Missouri, Tennessee and Kansas are well disposed to his candidacy, and it is believed that the organized labor of the country is friendly to him. It is more than likely that Gresham will come to the convention with a very influential following. Should he develop strength enough to extinguish Harrison's chances, Indiana would support him, and he would have friends in the delegations from the Pacific states. A large number of the Indiana delegates are personal friends of Judge Gresham. The Chicago Tribune, the Inter Ocean, the St. Louis Globe-Democrat, the Milwaukee Sentinel, all advocate Gresham. The German republicans of Illinois, Missouri and Kentucky are so pronounced in Gresham's favor that the Chicago Tribune thinks it will affect the selection of delegates favorable to his candidacy in all the Northwestern states. There is little doubt that Gresham's nomination would be supported by mugwump organs, like the New York Evening Post, New York Times, Boston Herald and Springfield Republican, who are disgusted and disappointed with Cleveland. The mugwumps would not support him because he was ever tainted with mugwumpery, for Gresham was always a stalwart republican of the Conkling and Arthur type, but they would welcome him as a man of ugly honesty and clean public record. The presence of Gresham in the field of candidates makes one thing certain, viz: that any effort suddenly to rush Blaine's name before the convention and nominate him with a hurrah will be vigilantly watched and resolutely resisted, and in this determination Illinois will be likely to be helped by the friends of both Sherman and Allison.

The language of the Illinois platform shows plainly that the friends of Gresham are in earnest when they demand a candidate who can make "an aggressive and not a defensive campaign." Illinois evidently has no idea of hesitating to take the offensive, if necessary, in the anti-Blaine movement. Indeed the voice of the republican press in the West is generally hostile to the "Blaine or bust" conspiracy. The Dayton (O.) Journal, commenting on the project to stampede the convention for Mr. Blaine, says that such a scheme would simply dissolve the republican party for an indefinite period. It would forfeit both branches of congress to the democracy and give them the presidency beyond any reasonable doubt; that if any trick of that sort should be played at Chicago, Grover Cleveland will have a walk-over. All the power of Hades could not stop the rush of honest people to resent the insult."

The St. Louis Globe-Democrat says that Blaine "could not possibly be elected if he should become a candidate in that manner. The antagonisms that would be created by such a breach of faith could not be removed by any kind or amount of pressure." The Milwaukee Sentinel says that the democrats generally desire Mr. Blaine's nomination, that the lesson to be derived by republicans from all this is that, if they wish to gratify their political enemies, they will renominate Mr. Blaine in spite of his declination."

The Indianapolis Journal thinks that "having formally declared that his name would not be presented to the convention, any further announcement of his purpose would stultify him, and that the republican party will therefore seek another candidate this year."

The Peoria (Ill.) Transcript says that "those who are working to bring about his nomination and acceptance, in spite of his letter declining to allow the use of his name before the convention, are doing more than anything else they could do to destroy the esteem in which he is held."

John V. Farwell, the great Chicago merchant, says that he "earnestly desired Mr. Blaine's nomination in 1884, but that he thinks he is played out as a candidate now. He has been trying it too long."

Ex-Gov. Foster of Ohio says: "Mr. Blaine's name will not be placed before the convention under any circumstances. Any efforts to get up a stampede in his favor will be a failure, as our canvass, so far as we have gone, shows that there will be enough delegates who will object to trying it again with him to prevent the carrying out of any plan whereby he might be nominated. This will have no reference to any particular candidate. They all agree that the choice must be made of a new man, no matter who that man may be."

The Philadelphia American, a stalwart high tariff organ, says that the question of the propriety of Mr. Blaine's renomination cannot be discussed, because it was laid on the table by Mr. Blaine himself. It holds that his withdrawal was sincere, and says further: "Mr. Blaine's candidacy is now morally impossible. The effect of his own act has been that which he presented as its purpose, and any one who thinks that the American people fail to see this, or that they would lower themselves and their country in a movement which could put truth and honor to shame, insults as well as misunderstands them. They would not elect Mr. Blaine now." The Newburyport (Mass.) Herald is of the opinion that "an expeditious way to extinguish the republican party entirely would be to nominate Mr. Blaine by acclamation at Chicago."

VERY PROPER PRUDENCE.

Recent statements from republican political circles in the Eastern states are to the effect that as the time for the republican convention approaches many leading republicans are beginning to talk in a very plain and open way of the reiterated statements that Mr. Blaine is to be a candidate. It is apparent that the continued boom for Blaine is led by persons who would expect, if he were elected to the presidency, to constitute his back-stairs cabinet. Nothing could more deeply injure Blaine than the supposition that men of this sort would "have the inside" with his administration. The broader-minded republicans are becoming restive under the continued and persistent assertions of these politicians that nobody but Blaine will do as a candidate, and this is especially so in view of Mr. Blaine's declination and the fact that Mr. Sherman, Mr. Allison, Gen. Harrison, Gen. Gresham and others have the support of a good many persons who, had it been known that Mr. Blaine would be a candidate, would not have committed themselves as they have done. It is certain that the other candidates will not be withdrawn from the field at Chicago, no matter how persistently Mr. Blaine may be pushed by those who are resolved to have him or nobody; for no announcement that Blaine is a candidate will drive from Gresham, Sherman, Allison, Harrison and others the forces respectively committed to, instructed for and supporting those gentlemen. This leading fact of the situation is apparent.

As a consequence, some very pointed private talk is being addressed to those who are so effusive in their demonstrations for Blaine. They are told very plainly that the delegations from states who are supporting other candidates, some of them under positive instructions, can not be expected to change to Blaine because some one may rise in the convention without any authority and state that Blaine would accept the position if nominated. Consequently, it is believed that steps will soon be taken to notify the Blaine boomers in a very emphatic way that if Blaine is to be a candidate before the convention some additional information must be furnished on that subject that can be relied on by the party. Many prudent men believe that in the absence of a message from Blaine himself setting this question at rest, the convention cannot be induced to nominate him, and many doubt very much the expediency of nominating him even if an authoritative declaration should be received from him that he had reconsidered his refusal to become a candidate.

It is natural that these opinions should exist, and it would be strange if they should not prevail. A great party ought not to permit itself to be juggled with by a set of politicians who are seeking their own ends under cover of a pretense of carrying out the popular will. This very thing is now going on in the democratic party in all the states. Great unanimity for Cleveland is reported in conventions controlled by his office-holders and others basking in the light and warmth of executive favor, or hoping to get there. The democratic party will present to the country one machine-made candidate. The republican party ought not to present another.

Some of the alleged newspapers printed hereabout profess to have discovered that THE OREGONIAN is supporting the candidates of the republican party under the idea that its editor may be elected to the United States senate. Two or three, more enterprising than the rest, have gone so far as to give the particulars and details of a "combination" alleged to have this for its object. It can be no harm to say to these brethren, in strict confidence, that their conjecture is wholly erroneous. The editor of THE OREGONIAN trusts that no one will ever think of him for the United States senate, or for any other office. Certainly he never will think of anything of the kind for himself. He is sufficiently satisfied with his present occupation, and would on no account step down from it into the senate of the United States.

When the Benton Leader sneers at republicans for regarding with satisfaction the history and achievements of their party it is clearly trying to make itself feel comfortable in its connection with a party that has had no history during the memory of any living man that it would not gladly blot out. Evidently the history of their party is just the thing that Voorhees, the Benton paper and all democrats "from way back," don't want to hear about.

Col. H. B. Carrington, U. S. A., whose letter to Voorhees in 1864 we republished in our last issue, was a brigadier-general of volunteers during the war, and colonel of the Eighteenth U. S. infantry. He is an officer of high character, and is now on the retired list, retiring in 1870 in consequence of an accidental wound received in the line of duty.

As the canvass proceeds it becomes certain that the prohibition vote of the state will be very small. The general opinion among those who have had good opportunity for observation is that it will fall a good deal below the vote of two years ago, when about 2200 prohibition ballots were cast in the state.

DEMOCRATIC CHEERS.

The state convention of the Michigan democracy is reported as having "cheered Voorhees." The country was prepared for this announcement. The democracy of Illinois cheered Voorhees and Vallandigham June 13, 1863, at Springfield. Grant was then before Vicksburg, and Voorhees in his speech insisted that peace should be made at any price with the Confederacy; that with Grant before Vicksburg it was high time to make peace and save their allies, the Southern democracy, then in arms against the government, from a great impending military disaster. If the Illinois democracy during the war could afford to cheer Voorhees for this plea for peace the natural heirs of the democracy of 1863 can certainly be safely counted upon to cheer Voorhees in time of peace.

The democracy of Michigan are also reported to have hissed Ingalls because he "slandered" Voorhees. Ingalls asked Voorhees if the soldiers on one occasion did not threaten to hang him with the bell-rope on the train between Terre Haute and Greencastle. Voorhees denied it, and now Capt. Robert E. Smith, a well-known lawyer of Indianapolis, rises up to explain that he was in command of the soldiers who attacked Mr. Voorhees on the train between Terre Haute and Greencastle, the incident to which Mr. Ingalls referred in his speech. Capt. Smith says the soldiers did not threaten to hang Voorhees with the bell-rope, but threatened to throw him out of the car window. The conductor told Capt. Smith of the trouble, and the latter at once arrested the men and quiet was restored. Of the soldiers who were the assailants, Capt. Smith says Messrs. B. Welch, now living at Cloverdale, and Lieut. Lee W. St. Clair, a representative in the last legislature, were two. The third is dead, and the fourth forgotten.

The Indiana democracy Aug. 8th, 1854, cheered Voorhees at Greencastle when in a public speech he said;

> This campaign of Grant's was of such a nature that you almost hear the bones of your brave sons and brothers crush like eggs clear to Washington city. The sickening details of the slaughter came up with the fumes of blood on our very breakfast table at Washington that morning. Yet Lincoln says: "I will peg away for four years more." In God's name have you not had enough of it? Let us try some other plan. This one has signally failed. Five hundred thousand more men and that is all. Three human souls were hurled into eternity by each of Mr. Lincoln's jokes. Bloody, gory, reeking, let him (Lincoln) go out into his hateful obscurity, there to stand the residue of his days with the accusations of the murdered dead jibbering around the unhappy felon.

It was for making this speech the Indiana soldiers wanted to throw Voorhees out of the car-window, but the Indiana democracy cheered him when he made it, and the Michigan democracy cheer him to-day because he made it. The same democracy cheers Voorhees and hisses Ingalls to-day that cheered Voorhees and hissed Lincoln and Grant in 1863. It hasn't changed front since that day. It was the "custom and habit of the place" that made a democratic peace-at-any price convention cheer Voorhees then. It is the "custom and habit of the place" that makes a democratic convention cheer Voorhees now.

A SOUND CONCLUSION.

The board of overseers of Harvard have decided that all inter-collegiate contests shall be prohibited, and that athletic exercises shall be strictly confined to contests among the students of the university itself. They base their decision upon the ground that inter-collegiate contests interfere seriously with the college work and exert an unhealthful influence upon the morals of the undergraduates. This conclusion is so sound that the wonder is the abuse of "athletics" has been so long permitted to go without rebuke and repression at the hands of the college authorities. The only explanation adequate is the assumption that the college authorities never were personally present at the scene of vulgarity, riot and rowdyism that is dignified by the name of an inter-collegiate contest, whether of football, baseball or boating. During the college year of 1886-87 there were ninety-four athletic contests in which the students of that university took part. Fifty of these were inter-collegiate contests, twenty-six were with amateur athletic organizations not connected with colleges, and thirty-four took place outside of Cambridge.

The trouble is not with the "athletics," pure and simple; it is the inevitable coincidents of the athletics, the gambling and ruffianly "sporting" performances that are inseparable from inter-collegiate contests, and are nourished by them. Inter-collegiate contests breed a crop of coarse young college bullies of the type of "Bob Cook," of Yale, a person who is about as destitute of the feelings and manners of a gentleman as the "muscular Christian" so effectively satirized by Wilkie Collins in "Man and Wife." If a college never expected to have any better material to train than beef-witted fellows like Thackeray's "Foker," Smedley's "Lawless," or the brute heroes of the author of "Guy Livingstone," inter-collegiate athletics would not demand any interference, since such creatures are sure to get "plucked" in any event. They are a curse to any college, and might as well be permitted to train their muscles extravagantly, since they have no brains in their thick skulls to develop and discipline.

But the evil of the inter-collegiate athletics lies in the fact that it makes iron-handed and iron-witted fellows like "Bob Cook" heroes among a lot of young fellows who are fit for better things than the brutality, vulgarity and depravity so luxuriantly nourished by inter-collegiate contests, as commonly conducted in this country. A powerful body married to a sound mind is a fine thing, but a powerful body married to the brutish tastes, habits and manners of professional turf gamblers is a curse to the world and an object of terror and disgust to all decent men and women, and, according to our own observation, inter-collegiate athletics breed more ruffianly college children like "Bob Cook" than it does high-souled, scholarly athletes, like Nathaniel Hawthorne or Col. Burnaby.

A gentleman who was in Worcester, Mass., a number of years ago, during the inter-collegiate boat race contest between Harvard and Yale, described it as a season of drunkenness, riot and brutality on part of the students that he never wanted to see again. Sam Collyer, the pugilist, was dragged from his room in the Bay State house during the night by a gang of drunken students and beaten nearly to death, as was his son, who tried to defend him. Dropping empty champagne bottles through the glass dome of the hotel was the favorite amusement of the students, and sleep was made impossible for the guests of the house.

College athletics, confined to the vicinage of the college, may not awaken so much enthusiasm as college athletics cultivated by inter-collegiate contests at places distant from the college and removed from all reach or control of its authority, but they will do more good and stimulate less disorder. Nobody expects that college boys will be saints, or be always sober; but it is hardly worth while to establish a training school for turf gambling, brutality and gross lawlessness under the name and sign of inter-collegiate athletic contests. Muscle acquired in this way generally gets on the wrong man; the fellow who either learns to use it like a brute and a tyrant, or who acquires those infirmities that have finally clouded the sun of the Hon. John Lawrence Sullivan's once brilliant day of athletic glory. Mr. Gladstone is an athletic person in his 80th year, in spite of a life of unexampled mental toil. He has kept himself in condition by temperance in diet, regular exercise and chopping down a tree occasionally on his estate. Moderate exercise has kept up his muscle and he is already long past the age that the average muscular Christian, who has been on cotton last about athletics from his youth up, ever attains.

There is a great deal of nonsense about "physical culture" and "scientific athletics," as practiced in colleges. Frugal diet, moderate exercise, regular hours for sleep, practiced from boyhood, will keep any man of sound constitution in good condition without giving any time to the elaborate system of athletics, which, by a sort of mimetical, forcing process, gets up what might be called "a hot-house" muscular development. Muscle obtained in this way is generally gained at the cost of injury to the enthusiast, for a man, who has lived in obedience to the ordinary laws of health will have all the muscle that Nature intended he should have, and the forcing process is as foolish as trying to put a number 9 foot into a number 7 shoe.

It is Pertinent.
Milwaukee Sentinel.

"Whether or not Voorhees was a copperhead twenty-five years ago," says the sanctimonious mugwump New York Evening Post, "are matters which may be of some concern to Ingalls and Voorhees, but they are only a bore to the average voter." Yet the Post never thinks it a bore if it can rake up some charge reflecting upon a prominent republican, no matter how old it may be. It is only bored when allusions are made to discreditable incidents in the lives of Mr. Cleveland's supporters. It certainly does seem pertinent when a man like Voorhees thrusts himself forward as the champion of the honor of Union soldiers, and assuming the character of a patriot of the purest strain, rebukes other men for lacking in respect for the country's defenders, that attention should be recalled to his own infamous record at the time when the Union was engaged in a doubtful and desperate struggle with armed rebellion.

A Memory of Early Days.

Rane of childhood's tender years.
Swallowed oft with groans and tears,
How it made the flesh recoil,
Lonthsome, greasy castor oil!
Search your early memory close,
Till you find another dose:
All the shuddering frame revolts
At the thought of Epsom salts!
Underneath the pill-box lid
Was a greater horror hid,
Climax of all inward ills,
Hugo and reigning old blue pills!

What a contrast to the mild and gentle action of Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets, sugar-coated; easy to take, cleansing, recuperating, renovating the system without wrenching it with agony. Sold by druggists.

The prohibitionists of Clackamas county held their nominating convention at Oregon City on Thursday May 10 the day on which the democrats were gathered together in the town to listen to the speech making of Gov Pennoyer Notwithstanding this the prohibition convention consisted of only nine delegates who proceeded to place in the field the following ticket State representatives—W A Sturkweather John Starratt and Samuel Brown county commissioners A R Shipley and W Marrs, sheriff D Harney assessor W A Mills treasurer W H H Wing surveyor J P Lole school superintendent W W Sibrey joint senator for Clackamas and Marion counties G W Dimick

Politics in Forest Grove

FOREST GROVE May 9

The political pot of Washington county has just commenced to boil A good deal of interest is taken in the contest for senator T H Tongue the republican nominee is spreading himself for the occasion whilst Houston the democratic nominee is stepping around very lively and feels confident of success A story is going the rounds about Tongue to the effect that ex Treasurer Pittinger's bondsmen are running him for the senate so he can get the bondsmen released by an act to be passed An effort of this kind was made at the last session without effect Some of the bond men being democrats it is generally thought that Tongue will lose many votes in the republican ranks and weaken his prospects materially

Gresham is the favorite here for the presidency

Crops are looking well and the prospect of a large fruit crop is fine

WASHINGTON TERRITORY.

William Connelly aged 18 a deckhand on the steamer Lillie was drowned in the Skagit river the other day

The residence of George Mowatt of Chewelah was burglarized during the absence of the family and $180 stolen

A young son of Mr King of North Seattle, fell with a pair of shears in his hand, a sharp point of which entered the right nostril cutting it open nearly to the eye

An excelsior manufactory has been established at Seattle Twelve thousand pounds of cottonwood excelsior will be turned out each week, when all the machines are running

Hall Brothers ship builders of Port Blakely, have purchased land in Seattle and will move their industry to that city Their plant is worth $100 000 and they employ 100 men

The Puget Sound Navigation and Improvement Company have awarded a contract for a large wharf and warehouse to be built at Seattle to the Elliott Bay Bridge Company for $3700

Seattle's new cable road will cost $200 000 There will be one trestle 1225 feet long and 125 feet high which will require 300,000 feet of lumber to build Two excursion steamers will be built on Lake Washington to run in connection with this road

Principal Engineer Huson in his speech the other evening at the celebration of the completion of the tunnel, said that the cost of the Cascade division of the Northern Pacific railroad was $8 810 000 and of this sum the cost of the tunnel was $1 160 000

Frank Crawford and J R Sewell mate and engineer of the steamer Bob Irving which blew up on the Sound a few weeks since killing Capt. Olney, have libeled that part of the wreck which remains for $867 the collective amount which they claim is due them for wages

Wm Peterson, who was sitting in a Seattle saloon was shot in the cheek by a bullet which came through a thin board partition from an adjoining shooting gallery The gun was fired by G Palm who said it went off before he could point it toward the target The wound is painful but not serious

An Over Careful Official.

Tacoma News Richard Fenton, a young man from Whatcom county met in this city his fiancee Miss Katie York of Whatcom county Oregon yesterday When he applied to the auditor for a license, Mr Huggins asked if he had the consent of the parents of the young lady who was under age He produced the written consent but the auditor still doubted and so the would be bridegroom telegraphed the parents and the answer came back all right He was granted the license and was married last evening at 6 o'clock at the Villard house A E Lawrence, justice of the peace officiating

NECROLOGY.

Judge H W English, of Helena Montana, who died the other day at Seattle was at the time en route to Victoria for his health. He was an old veteran of the Mexican war and had been a resident of Montana since 1864 The remains were taken back to Helena for interment

Miss Annie Denny youngest daughter of D V Denny of Seattle died in New York city the other day aged 22 years Some two weeks ago Mr Denny accompanied by his two daughters left for New York city as a delegate from Washington territory to the general Methodist Episcopal convention now in session The young ladies were both well when they started and the announcement of the sudden death of Miss Annie was entirely unexpected She was born and had grown to womanhood in Seattle beloved by all who knew her The remains were brought back to Seattle for burial

W C T U CONVENTION

Address of Rev Alfred C Kummer—A Police Matron in Portland Recommended

EUGENE May 9

Music has been furnished during the convention by the Glee Club of Eugene under the able management of Mr I G Adair The pieces rendered have been of a classical character and would have been a credit to professionals Last evening the music was even better than before

The president introduced Rev Alfred C Kummer, of Taylor street church Portland who delivered a masterly address It was scholarly full of logic argumentative and convincing The convention feels under many obligations to Mr Kummer for his able and timely help

Mrs Robb's graceful collection speech brought in a liberal offering

THURSDAY MORNING

The convention opened with devotional exercises at 9 A M The first order of business was the appointment of the following committee on nominations Mesdames Townsend and Hatch and Miss Newton also the president as an advisory member

A paper on Sabbath Desecration was read also the report of the superintendent of fairs and public gatherings This report showed that an energetic effort had been made to counteract the evils always so prevalent at these gatherings and in many instances a gratifying success attended the effort

A spirited and humorous discussion on music finally terminated in the expressed belief that "Our Country 'Tis of Thee" and "Home, Sweet Home" were more highly appreciated by the average American voter than all classical music now published

Juvenile work was next before the convention, and under this head a report of the Baby Home recently established in East Portland was read The enterprise was heartily endorsed by the convention, as such an institution is clearly one of the Lord's provisions for his neglected little ones

The report of the Industrial Home brought out many interesting remarks upon the benefit to be derived from the establishing of these institutions The one now established in Portland is felt to be a step in the right direction

The state superintendent of jail and prison work recommended that the State Union ask the appointing of a police matron in Portland

AFTERNOON SESSION

After the devotional exercises came the report of the superintendent of unfermented wine Ten unions reported and these represented seventy four churches fifty of which use unfermented wine This certainly shows progress

The superintendent of higher education read a most able report, and among other good suggestions she recommended that some able man be invited into our state to lecture before the schools and organize the young men into clubs designated as White Cross Clubs

The Evangelistic superintendent read a very encouraging report from the unions

The finance committee presented a substantial plan for defraying the current expenses of the year

These deliberations have been interspersed with music and the dull routine of work broken by the frequent introduction of gentlemen whose happy encouraging remarks have cheered the workers COM

THE PLUMED KNIGHT CLUB

Officers of This Organization Deny That They Have Solicited Democratic Funds

PORTLAND May 11

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN

On looking through the columns of THE OREGONIAN to-day we saw an article headed A Political Speculation' signed by six colored gentlemen At the first glance we thought the whole coast of Africa had hurled its thunderbolts of wrath on our defenseless heads, and on those who are as united with us in our endeavors to maintain the Plumed Knight Republican Club And for what? Simply because we wish to maintain a republican club to advance the best interests of the republican party in this county and state

If the Plumed Knight Republican Club accomplishes no more during this campaign it has been successful thus far in causing at least six of our brethren to come out squarely and declare that no amount of democratic money will induce them to vote that ticket We are glad to know this But how much better would it have been for these 'Loyal Six,' if instead of assailing us in such a silly way they had taken advantage of the notice which called a meeting for Thursday evening and then they could have seen for themselves what we are doing

As for the charges that we are catering to both parties, we say it is a base falsehood, which only emanated in the wicked brain of some jealous hearted person or persons whose only object is to try to tear down that which they have not the courage or ability to build up All money collected for this club has been subscribed by republican candidates to office and we defy anyone to say that we have collected one cent from any democrat towards the maintenance of the Plumed Knight Republican Club

The Plumed Knight Club still lives and shall continue until the 'last horn blows' in November, the 'Loyal Six" notwithstanding

DOES NOT WANT HIS SLEEP DISTURBED

PORTLAND May 11

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN

If that part of this city defined by Second street extending from Oak to Alder, and especially that part between Stark and Washington is not entirely given over to hoodlums and Chinese, a sufferer from the noises and disturbances of these peace destroyers would supplicate you to call the attention of the police department to the fact that this locality much of the time between the hours of 10 o'clock at night and 6 o'clock in the morning is a pandemonium The sufferer would respectfully ask by what right Chinese are permitted to converse in the streets in tones so loud that if indulged in by white men would be considered riotous, and for which white men would be arrested or made to desist. Every night Chinese walk that street at a late hour in crowds (they always go in bunches) and are permitted to talk in so loud tones as to awaken sleepers any where within blocks of them This sufferer would also like to know by what right men are permitted to congregate at a beer saloon within the bounds mentioned in the heart of this city and having filled themselves with beer sing songs and yell demoniac yells, long and continuously at 2 o'clock in the morning or at any hour for that matter, rendering sleep impossible to those who are under the necessity of trying to sleep in that accursed vicinity

I protest that the quiet inoffensive citizen has his rights as well as the hoodlum and the Chinese and the right of immunity from annoyance by these disturbing elements is one of them and not the least Surely the police are empowered to prevent these things but if they have not the authority of law to prevent them the city government is earnestly invoked by this sufferer and many others more modest, who have not yet spoken but silently suffered to pass such an ordinance or ordinances as will hedge us about with sufficient quietude that we may lie down to pleasant dreams

Night is the time for sleep
How sweet when labors close
To gather round an aching breast
The curtain of repose.

CONKLING AND BLAINE

ALBANY Or, May 10

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN

Allow me to give a little more light on that Blaine Conkling letter episode Your statement is correct up to 'Interference of Fool Friends It should have read Interested Jealous Enemies' That letter died in the hands of Warner Miller held and suppressed by him (Miller) did not wish Blaine and Conkling to be friendly knowing if Conkling went before the people again he would reinstate himself in their affections and thereby lessen Miller's chances for continuance in the place he was unworthily trying to fill Ask Miller for that letter It is not destroyed

I would be trespassing to give details I should be silent perhaps but I can't refrain from trying to ward off calumny and reproach from the memory of one of America's greatest statesmen one whose every act was for the good of the people WASH

BUSINESS EMBARRASSMENT

Yesterday afternoon the dry goods house of Collinson & Alpel was closed by attachment suit in the sum of $30 000 The attaching creditors are L & I White of this city whose claim is $10 800 the First National bank $2000 and San Francisco creditors $17 000

Mr Collinson of the firm stated that the suits had been brought about by pressure from San Francisco creditors The firm he said would be able to show more than $1 as sets for every dollar of liabilities and he hoped soon to be able to make such arrangements with creditors whereby business would be resumed

The Candidate for Congress

I see it stated remarked a candidate for congress as he looked critically at the bottom of his glass and felt in his pocket for a cardamon seed that every person in the United States uses on an average fifty pounds of sugar in a year That's too much I am in the habit of taking some sugar in mine occasionally continued the candidate reflectively but I've always thought it was more healthy to take it straight or mixed with a little seltzer Fifty pounds a year! Gosh! What hogs some people do make of themselves

AGRICULTURAL MATTERS.

A Newly Discovered Remedy to Prevent Fungus on Fruit.

How and Where Sanfoin Should be Planted—The Cherry Crop Will be Light This Year—The Cause

The cause and cure of the fungus spots that attack pears and apples, and sometimes other fruits has been the subject of much study and experiment This growth distorts and ruins fruit more or less, and some varities—for instance the Winter Nellis—are ruined in California The fungus is of different size and character, and the study of it possesses much interest for scientists Those of California say that the moist climate and the fogs of the ocean encourage the growth of fungi and afford conditions favorable to their development that they seem to increase as cultivation extends, and are seen in the form of rust smut mildews and blights that cause serious loss The study of fungi is of recent date and from their minuteness of structure the microscope is necessary to determine their form and character A paper published in the biennial report of the state board of horticulture of California for 1887 asserts that the number of species and families is very great and they differ as to size as much in proportion as to the very tiniest herbs and the giants of the forest Still they have points in common differing from higher order of plant life Their power of reproduction is complicated yet wonderful in that they possess the power of indefinite multiplication

It seems evident that nearly all the blights troubling fruit trees are due to some sort of fungus that has spread so that orchards once bearing sure crops have become uncertain and now often are failures

The paper referred to describes the black pear and apple smut technically called the Fusicladium dentriticum This affects both the fruit and the foliage It is very destructive in California and is becoming so in Oregon Ten years ago nothing was known of it in Pacific orchards Five years ago two Winter Nellis pear trees of the university experimental orchard of Berkeley showed a smoky aspect This under a glass appeared to be a smutlike fungus that affected and greatly injured the fruit and foliage The warm weather removed the fungus from those trees but the next season it affected six or eight more trees On the third year the same blight affected all parts of the orchard injuring both the fruit and foliage That year complaints of this blight were made from all parts of the fog belt, especially affecting the Winter Nellis In the Berkeley garden all grades of the blight have appeared In many instances it attacks the bloom and the fruit does not form or mature any pretense of growing It attacked the young branches and the effect appears the second year An eight year old pear orchard at Watsonville affected by this blight has never borne fruit at all because of its destructive effect

The report alluded to has several engravings that illustrates the appearance of dumaged and cracked fruits, branches and leaves It is similar in appearance with the aspect of fungus here, but apparently is much worse than it ever has been in Oregon Experiments were made there to find a cure or preventive After many other efforts had failed a successful remedy was tried and adopted It consists of sulphide of soda prepared as follows Dissolve thirty pounds of whalesoil soap (80 per cent soap and very cheap) in sixty gallons of water Boil three pounds of American concentrated lye with six pounds of sulphur and a couple of gallons of water This when thoroughly dissolved, is sulphide of soda, and a dull brown liquid Mix the soap and the sulphide of soda and let them boil for half an hour add ninety gallons of water and it is ready for use At Berkeley this was applied warm heated to 130 degrees Fahrenheit in the barrel from which it was sprayed and proved a decided success Fruit that was cracked and distorted the year before was the next year smooth and perfect

Where trees are effected so that the bloom does not set to fruit the advice is to spray in the fall again in the spring before blooming and if the fruit shows signs of fungus, spray again after it has set.

Where varieties bloom and set then spray thoroughly once after the fruit has set

The writer of this valuable paper evidently is a scientist in charge of the university experiment station at Berkeley Cal He plainly says he does not guarantee that sulphide of soda is a perfect remedy for the winter nellis blight but he candidly believes that it will prove to be such He suggests other remedies in case the blight is of the worst class but probably the character of blight he tells of is not known in Oregon and the sulphide of soda prescription well mixed and thoroughly used will accomplish the best results

The importance of this remedy is just in proportion to the damage the fungus does to fruit Many farmers and fruit growers in Oregon are losing more than they are aware of by this cause Fifty years ago the finest pears in New England were cracked and dwarfed by this same blight and now we see it appearing in full strength in the far Pacific Last year many thousands of barrels of apples and pears in the Willamette country were ruined or injured Already young fruit is setting with this destructive blight fully formed on it and there is every reason to suppose its ravages will be worse as years give it strength If this remedy is as efficient as is claimed for it orchardists in Oregon should immediately use it and save the fruit now just forming

SANFOIN

One Who Knows Tells How and Where to Plant It

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN

Seeing much mention in your agricultural columns of sanfoin (Ousbrychis sativa) as a forage crop and being well acquainted with its nature, growth and the soil it requires and will have, to succeed, I take the liberty of speaking a little on sanfoin, my motive is twofold First to urge its growth where suitable conditions exist and second to tell experimenters not to attempt it except under those conditions Dry light shallow soils especially on a calcareous formation are suitable Although it has a wide range of soils yet some factors are essential to success First no stagnant water underneath the top soil Second the presence of lime in the soil Third the use of new seed only Four to six pecks of milled seed per acre to be drilled twelve inches apart in March If rough unhusked seed is used allow four bushels of this A great want in our Willamette valley is a cheap source of lime With this we could unlock the treasures of the soil and our pastures would become heavily seeded full of clover, resisting our dry summers and feeding four times the cattle to the acre than at present One good dressing of lime will be felt for twenty years by land if in sufficient quantity say about forty bushels to the acre Twenty cents a bushel loose at the kiln is about all farmers can at present afford to pay Anyone who has burnt lime knows that given good limestone rock or chalk and sufficient fuel at hand this leaves a large profit But to our sanfoin plaster (gypsum or hydrated sulphide of lime—the same article under various names) is still available and I strongly urge those who may intend to try a piece of sanfoin to prepare the ground by using at least six bushels per acre of this manure In the sowing of sanfoin there is 24 per cent of lime—technical FRANK BUTLER

THE CHERRY CROP

The news that cherries are a short crop in California has called attention to the conditions of the cherry crop at home and elsewhere the fact that at least in some sections and probably in all sections of Western Oregon cherries are a short crop Ten days ago the cherry trees promised well but the promise has not been well kept Cherries are certainly a light crop and what has caused it is the next question The weather will have to be responsible for this delinquency There have been no such cold rains as distinguished this time in 1886 and 1887 There has been a sudden change of temperature of 40 degrees within forty-eight hours and that must have done the mischief They had mercury at 82 degrees and then there have been cold nights that went nearly down to the frost line These vicissitudes of our climate must have damaged the cherry crop. Some varieties are full The black republicans are bearing very full. Though the latest of all, it comes out and forms the first, and may have been far enough advanced to withstand heat and cold There will be quite a good cherry crop and the fact that it is not as large as usual coupled with the shortage elsewhere on this coast, will insure a high price

The weather has not injured the fruit crop outside of cherries. All other kinds are fully set and well grown for the time California will not have a surplus this year to interfere with the Oregon crop

THIS YEAR'S CAMPAIGN.

Some Interesting Speculation Concerning the Next Presidential Vote

Here is a table of the republican and democratic states, and those that may fairly be classed as doubtful, with their respective electoral votes

Whole number of Electoral votes		401
Necessary to elect		201
REPUBLICAN	DEMOCRATIC
California 8	Alabama 10
Colorado 3	Arkansas 7
Illinois 22	Delaware 3
Iowa 13	Florida 4
Kansas 9	Georgia 12
Maine 6	Kentucky 13
Massachusetts 14	Louisiana 8
Michigan 13	Maryland 8
Minnesota 7	Mississippi 9
Nebraska 5	Missouri 16
Nevada 3	North Carolina 11
New Hampshire 4	South Carolina 9
Ohio 23	Tennessee 12
Oregon 3	Texas 13
Pennsylvania 30	Virginia 12
Rhode Island 4	West Virginia 6
Vermont 4
Wisconsin 11 Total	153
Total 183
DOUBTFUL
Connecticut 6	New Jersey 9
Indiana 15	New York 36
Total doubtful		66

The democrats can't elect the next president without carrying New York If they should carry all the other doubtful states and lose New York they would still lack eighteen votes of enough Or if they should carry New York and lose the other doubtful states they would fall twelve votes short In order to win they must carry both New York and Indiana or New York New Jersey and Connecticut besides the solid South

The republicans can win by either one of the following combinations

Sure republican states	183
Indiana	15
New Jersey	9
Total	206
Or this
Sure Republican states	183
Indiana	15
Connecticut	6
Total	204
Or this
Sure republican states	183
New York	36
Total	218

On the whole the republicans can face the presidential contest with full courage

THE BLAINE BUSINESS

Eastern Men Growing Very Weary of the Efforts of a Faction to Boom Him

Washington Special, May 6

Conversations with a number of representatives and senators to-day regarding the outlook for the nomination at Chicago gives one the idea that the almost unanimous impression exists that the Philadelphia Times article is the last dying gasp of the Blaine boom Politicians who have hitherto been friends of Blaine assert that such vacillation as is indicated by the above report is a thing foreign to Blaine's character and indeed unknown in American politics It could have no other effect if true than to greatly weaken Mr Blaine with his own party They plainly assert that they do not believe that Mr Blaine has in any way authorized or would countenance such a state of affairs The trouble seems to be that a large number of Blaine's leading adherents, taking his letter of declination to be entirely sincere, have pledged themselves or are giving their support to other candidates, and that many of them are now in positions from which they cannot withdraw It is these men who would resent bitterly any attempt on the part of Blaine's friends to bring him again into the field The whole scheme is looked upon as the work of a few men who by the use of Blaine's name, hope to dictate to a certain extent the nomination to be made at Chicago and secure a certain proportion of patronage thereby from any republican who might be nominated and elected The fact is that the East having in a business like way determined to dismiss Mr Blaine from its mind as a candidate is growing a little but weary of the whole Blaine business and while it still holds its kindly remembrance and respect for Mr Blaine it is growing disgusted with the people who are trying to boom him against his expressed will

HOW INGALLS DID IT

St Louis Globe-Democrat.

The Ingalls Voorhees encounter of yesterday in the senate, was the sensation of the hour to-day It was discussed by statesmen and pseudo-statesmen in the halls and corridors of the Capitol and by the great public on the streets and in the lobbies of the hotels Democrats and republicans universally agreed that the Indiana senator had been badly worsted in fact, that Mr Ingalls had literally mopped up the earth with Mr Voorhees Eugene Ware, the Point creek poet of Fort Scott Kansas expressed it in the following verse which he telegraphed to Senator Ingalls this morning

Cyclone dense,
Lurid air,
Wabash hair
Hide on fence

The shrewdness of Mr Ingalls's plan of attack is universally complimented His speech which began at 2 o clock and closed at 4 was brilliant, able and pointed but it was mild as compared with the second edition His grape and canister were in reserve and Mr Voorhees didn't suspect it The Kansas orator had carefully prepared himself with the documentary evidence against the Tall Sycamore of the Wabash and he was thrice armed with the language necessary to rhetorically skin him alive. When at 4 o clock Mr Ingalls had finished his set speech Mr Voorhees blandly supposed that the ammunition was all gone and that he would proceed to thrash his unarmed adversary He entered upon his excoriation of Mr Ingalls in apparent glee He felt that it would be an easy task to demorabize the Kansas senator and put him utterly to rout He became sarcastic and then tried to be funny He wept for McClellan and Hancock and his sympathetic nature even went out to the man he was about to slay

The opportunity which Ingalls had anticipated came and he interrupted Mr Voorhees with a question which disturbed his equanimity then annoyed him then angered then enraged He plunged about in his madness until he clumsily fell into the fit Ingalls had warily prepared for him and from that moment he was at the mercy of the kansan Mr Voorhees lost his temper and Mr Ingalls's remarkable coolness and smiling serenity only exasperated him the more He was defiant at first and it was only when Ingalls began reading the rebel letter which Voorhees until that moment believed was out of existence and forever beyond recall that Mr Voorhees cowered At the first sentence he whitened with the startling knowledge that after a quarter of a century his sins of treason had found him out and when the letter was finished the Hoosier was white and trembling From that moment all he could do was to deny everything and shout liar and dirty dog and abuse and vilify everything and everybody concerned

It was dramatic to the end and Mr Voorhees left the senate chamber mo e thoroughly whipped than ever before in his life To day he was conspicuous for his absence and it is reported he will remain away for some days Democratic senators say he ought to have kept his mouth shut when Ingalls closed his first speech at 4 o clock but he didn't They are therefore not very regretful that he got the drubbing he courted

To-day Senator Ingalls was the recipient of congratulatory telegrams from every quarter of the Union All of them were complimentary many of them unique The governors of not less than a dozen republican states sent their congratulations and complimentary telegrams came even from Indiana Kansas was evidently overjoyed at the victory of her senior senator for there were telegrams patriotic enthusiastic and full of all the eloquence the wires could transmit from every portion of the Sunflower state.

Those unhappy persons who suffer from nervousness and dyspepsia should use Carter's Little Nerve Pills, which are made expressly for sleeplessness, nervous, dyspeptic sufferers Price 25 cents.

Talk With a Man Living in Malheur County.

Plenty of Rain and Good Prospects for all Sorts of Crops—Considerable Decline in the Sheep Industry

Mr B F Sargent an old resident of the Malheur country who has been stopping in the city for the past week was interviewed yesterday by a reporter He gave a rather encouraging account of the prospects of that section of the Inland Empire Recently the new county of Malheur was created by act of the legislature and Mr Sargent thus became a citizen of a new county without having to pull up stakes and change his residence He has lived for a long time at Malheur City and was for a number of years the Nasby at that point Mr Sargent said the crop outlook for his county was very good considering all the circumstances Considerable snow had fallen in the mountains during the past winter and as yet but a very small proportion of the bulk had melted All the snow that fell on the hills and plains when it dissolved had soaked into the ground None of the surplus water had been drained away through the natural outlets of the water courses Brooks creeks and the larger streams had shown no marked increase in volume when the masses of snow disappeared The soil drank all the watery stores just like a dry sponge This caused the ground to be well supplied with water and for that reason the soil has been able to rot in an unusual amount of moisture to a considerable depth owing to the light sandy nature of the soil and the protracted warm weather the surface became very dry Crops up to eight or ten days ago were suffering much for want of rain Especially was this the case with the hay crop A generous rain prevailed over the greater part of Malheur county several days since which gave a new lease of life to the languishing grass cereal and vegetable crops and places the prospects of a good fair yield within the province of an assured fact

Mr Sargent says he has just received a letter from Malheur which states that crops are in a flourishing condition The rain was sufficient to pretty thoroughly saturate the ground down to a depth reaching the subsoil moisture This downpour was voted a God send by the farmers and stockraisers Stock ranges were beginning to suffer severely for want of rain and the grass and herbage had commenced to show the parching effects of the drouth Present prospects have inspired hopes of a good yield and everyone is in cheerful spirits

Stock is doing very well although the rigor of last winter occasioned considerable loss Sheep especially, suffered from the beating storms and extreme cold In some places Mr Sargent says the temperature was so low that the quicksilver congealed and the people were at a loss to determine just how far down the tube the cold wave actually did crawl One sheep raiser lost 150 head in a few hours Shivering from the storm the poor animals huddled together in a mass and scores that did not perish from exposure were smothered to death Mr S says these are not a great many sheep at that portion of the county where he lives A few years ago there was much trouble between the cattle men and owners of sheep ranches growing out of the conflicts of interest and disputes about range limits These disputes have resulted in the material diminishing of the great sheep flocks Sheep-shearing has been in vigorous progress for some time and the most of that work is now over Mr Sargent speaks in flattering terms of the resources both present and prospective of Malheur county With population energy and well directed industry that part of the common wealth of Oregon is capable of becoming second to no other section

NO DOUBT HE IS SORRY HE DID IT

A Thief on the High Seas in the Clutches of the Law

M Wells who was arrested on the arrival of the State of California on a charge of larceny preferred by Goon Dip, a Chinese passenger on the steamer, has been turned over to the United States authorities Wells stole the Chinaman's valise the contents of which were valued at $60 and after taking some cigars from it threw it overboard The charge was dismissed in the police court yesterday as the theft having been committed on the high seas the state had no jurisdiction in the case

As soon as he was released he was taken in charge by a Deputy United States Marshal and escorted to the county jail He will have an examination before a United States Commissioner on Monday and witnesses have been sent for to Astoria

Insane is the adjective applied by the Worcester Spy (Rep) to the project of nominating Blaine in face of his letter of withdrawal

What Your Friends and Neighbors Say on a Matter of Vital Importance

Below will be found a sample of the multitude of letters of encouragement Messrs H H Warner & Co, of Rochester N Y daily receive. The subjoined unsolicited testimonials are from your friends and neighbors ladies and gentlemen you know and esteem for their honor and straightforwardness and who would scorn to be a party to any deception What has been done for others can be done for you and it is folly, nay suicidal, to longer suffer when the means of recovery lie at your very door

CROW, Lane Co Oregon April 11, 1887—For twenty years I have been troubled with backache About two months ago I awoke one morning with a severe pain in the small of my back Two or three days later it seemed to be in my right kidney, and it became so swollen that it was as large as a man's fist I suffered the most excruciating pain I ever felt and there was a thick greenish sediment in my urine I went to Eugene City and procured a bottle of Warner's Safe Cure and immediately began to take it After taking the first bottle of Warner's Safe Cure I felt greatly relieved, and the swelling in my right kidney was reduced until it was no larger than an English walnut I procured another bottle of Warner's Safe Cure and after taking it I felt entirely relieved Since that time my health has been good and I have had no pain in the small of my back I believe Warner's Safe Cure is the best medicine in the world.

John H. Brown P. M.

INDEPENDENCE Or Feb 14 1887—Seven years ago I had an attack of hemorrhage of the kidneys By the help of a physician the hemorrhage was stopped in about six weeks My back never got strong after the above attack and last May I again had a return attack of hemorrhage of the kidneys I called the same physician whom I had before and upon an examination of my urine he said that it contained more than one third blood He resorted to the same treatment which had benefited me in my previous attack but it did not do good He resorted to many different kinds of treatment but I received no relief I got very sick with vomiting, about a week followed with high fever and soreness of my right kidney The more doctors were called and although they told me that they could help me out they said to others that I never could get out again From June 1st to the 18th I lay under a variety of treatments but most of the time I seemed to be going from bad to worse I then called my family doctor and told him that the hemorrhage had increased very much the last two days and if he could do any thing for me he had better do it soon He put me under a new treatment for about three weeks I could see that I was rapidly losing ground and I became convinced that the doctor could do me no good It seemed that I must pass to the other shore My friends advised me to try Warner's Safe Cure and I did so although I feared that it might do me more harm than good I had little faith in it I commenced taking it in the evening of July 8 and imagine my surprise when on Sunday July 11 I was so much improved that my friends could move me out of my bedroom for the first time in fifty-one days The next day I felt so much better that I could compare myself to an old feather bed to at had been thoroughly renovated Since I began to take Warner's Safe Cure I have treated myself wholly by the use of Warner's safe Remedies and have for the most part, gained steadily all the time

George Rogers

LAKEVIEW Oregon Jan 28 1888.—In July last whilst at Reno Nevada I was led to purchase two bottles of 'Warner's Safe Cure I feared I had Bright's disease of the kidneys I broke one bottle when one third was used up and used about one-half of the remaining one What was wrong with my kidneys I have no means of knowing, I do know that I have no kidney disease now Warner's Safe Cure is a dead shot on kidney disease

A Skin Without Blemish

Everywhere a network of subcutaneous ducts, veins and nerves the skin constantly renews itself and not only with the ceaseless desquamation but with its natural functional action eliminates all waste accumulation and disease Hence a skin without blemish means more than beauty, it means health.

CUTICURA, the great skin cure, and CUTICURA SOAP an exquisite skin beautifier, prepared from it, externally and CUTICURA RESOLVENT, the new blood purifier internally cure every species of torturing, disfiguring, itching scaly and pimply diseases of the skin scalp and blood, with loss of hair, from pimples to scrofula

I have been afflicted for a great many years with bad blood which has caused me to have sores on my body My hands were in a solid sore for over a year I had tried almost everything I could hear of, but had given up all hopes of ever being cured, when I saw the advertisement of the CUTICURA REMEDIES I used one box of CUTICURA, one bottle of RESOLVENT, and one cake of SOAP, and am now able to do all my own work

BABY'S Skin scalp and hair preserved and beautified by the use of CUTICURA SOAP

I have suffered all my life with dyspepsia, and have never found a remedy that gave me relief until I used AYER'S SARSAPARILLA. It has cured me entirely, and I heartily recommend it to all who are troubled with this terrible disease. CECILE WADE, Reference G. W. Latimer, Brooklyn, N.Y.

Have just used your CUTICURA REMEDIES and find it the best of any I have ever used. I recommend it to be the best blood purifier on the market. My daughter was afflicted with a humor on her head and body and doctors said it would have to come out. Now she is as sound as a dollar, and she has only used one box of CUTICURA and one cake of CUTICURA SOAP. CUTICURA REMEDIES are the best to be had, and will do all that is claimed for them. I have used CUTICURA SOAP for my children, and it is the best soap to make an infant's skin soft. GEORGE KARR, Jeweler.

For the last year I have had a most severe case of scaly and pimply humors on my face, which I have applied a great many medicines to, but without success and which was entirely cured by the CUTICURA REMEDIES. MRS. ELIAS PHILLIPS.

Railroad stocks are to-day showing considerable strength, the apparent tone being greatly improved as compared with the closing of a few days past. The strength is in retail lends some influence, but the fact that buyers are plenty is a greater help.

The English government has decided on levying a progressive income tax on foreign ... of business trading in England. Foreigners, however, the government intends levying ... not proportionately to the profits realized by such firms in England, but upon the total profits made by the firm in its own country. A French firm, M. M. Werle & Co., appealed to the courts against the principle, but lost their case in the first instance, and the supreme court have just confirmed judgment against them on appeal. The last constitutes a revolution in the commercial system, all the more so that the tax is very high. Its right to say that the decision of the supreme court may possibly be in accordance with the letter of the law; yet it is none the less illogical. As a matter of fact, W. M. Werle & Co. have no warehouse in London, and their wines having paid their import duty, the firm thus pay duty twice over.

NEW YORK STOCK MARKET.

NEW YORK, May 11.—The stock market was dull again to-day, except during the last hour and a portion of the first, and prices moved up slowly throughout the day, the advance gaining force toward the close. The advance was stopped only with the close of business, which was active and strong at about the top figures for the day. The active list is almost invariably higher this evening, though gains recorded are for fractional amounts only.

DO THE GIRLS KNOW THIS?

Chewing Gum Made of Petroleum Refuse and the Doctoring May be Injurious.

New York Mail and Express.

"What is chewing gum made from?" repeated a very large producer in Brooklyn of the now almost universally used substance to a reporter for the Mail and Express, who with others was being shown around the extensive works. "That is one of the secrets of the trade and we have no desire to give it away. Suffice it to say there are few only who know its original foundation, for that is disguised completely in the confections which are placed around it."

This reply only excited the curiosity of the reporter, and while looking out of one of the windows of the works he noticed a large truck bearing on its side the name of a well-known candle manufacturer in New York. The truck was heavily laden with bags of some kind of substance evidently intended for use in the works. Following up this clue the reporter called at the candle factory in question and learned that the substance delivered at the chewing gum factory was the refuse of petroleum after the kerosene had been extracted. The informant said:

"The crude petroleum is pressed until the black oil is extracted. This is refined and produces paraffine, and subsequently kerosene, which can also be further refined. The refuse is a yellow scale, which can be made into hard paraffine wax, used in the manufacture of candles. The same yellow scale can, by a process known to the chewing-gum makers, be made into a soft wax which will yield easily to the action of the teeth. It is of such a peculiar nature when first prepared that, if once chewed upon, it will almost involuntarily cause the person in whose mouth it may be to continue the work of mastication."

"But kerosene oil has a nasty taste and smell, while chewing-gum has not."

"True; but you must remember that the oil has been squeezed out, or at least the greater part of it. If you were to take the yellow scale as it first comes from the press, it would doubtless have some of the same taste and smell that you speak of; but after it has been subjected to several processes, and artfully hidden under the essences contained in the confections which cover the chewing-gum, few would recognize the yellow scale of refuse of the petroleum."

"But is not the substance injurious to health?"

"Not more so than any other kind of wax. Of course, excessive use of anything may prove injurious. The greatest evil that I can surmise would be in the extraordinary exercise of the salivary glands, thereby depriving them of that force which nature gives to them when requiring their use in the proper mastication of food. Of course I am not only speaking of the petroleum basis of the chewing gum as sold, and have no knowledge of the composition of what covers the little cakes in the shape of a confection. The latter is naturally taken into the stomach, while the waxy portion is generally thrown away after it has served its purpose as a chewing gum. If the pure paraffine wax was used as soon as it is refined, it would be a simple, tasteless substance, and consequently less attractive than in the forms it is now sold."

"As chewing gum is cheap, would it not pay better to make the so-called refuse into paraffine wax candles?"

"It would, if there was as large a demand for the candles as there is scale made in the process of getting out the oil. There being so much yellow scale produced, something has to be done with it or it would go to waste. A market has therefore been found among the chewing-gum manufacturers, who get it at an almost nominal rate. Hence the profit, despite the cheap price at which it is sold."

THE ACTOR'S PART.

Memorizing a Multitude of Plays—The Legitimate and the Sensational.

Philadelphia Bulletin.

An actor friend, memorizing his part, talked thus on the methods of study which prevail among actors and authors: "There are few classes whose memories are more severely taxed than actors. The amount of reading matter—upon all sorts of subjects, ancient and modern—that pipes through the wards of their brains is in a few years immense. Of course a great deal in respect to time required to study a part depends upon the style of the author they have to memorize. The ordinary sensational play is comparatively easy, the language is commonplace, the incidents suggest it, and the substitution of other words than the author's with the same meaning (and which is sometimes an improvement), is not objected to; but in what is called the legitimate drama it is vastly different. In the latter case the performance must be 'dead letter perfect,' which can only be acquired by hard and patient study. People are apt to think that Shakespeare is difficult to commit to memory, whereas he is not by any means so much so as many others. There is that beautiful flow of words, that musical rymth in the language of the immortal bard that the thinking power readily retains. Bulwer is harder to deal with than Shakespeare, but the most difficult of all is undoubtedly Sheridan Knowles. The blank verse of this author, beautiful as it is, is so peculiar and at times so twisted as to give an actor or actress a great deal of trouble to memorize it. Some astonishing feats of memorizing have been done by the dramatic profession, which shows what wonders may be performed at 'the seat of sensation and intellect.' An actor has been known to assume a part at a few moments' notice. In such a case he notes down at what points of the piece he is 'off the stage.' Having mastered his first scene, he has to trust to these intervals, when he is out of the sight of the audience, to cram in his brain the remainder and so fight his way through the whole play. This is called 'winging a part.' A company, nearly all of whom were strangers to each other, found themselves in a far-away country town. On the day of their opening they discovered their luggage could not reach them for two days at least. The bills had been posted and many seats had been taken in advance. There were no play books to be had in such a place. In the afternoon a book of "The Wonder" was fished up. The manager cast the piece, tore up the book, distributed the leaves, each performer to study from a leaf, then pass it to another, and so on. That night "The Wonder" was played to a crowded house, and went off with thunders of applause.

WAR STORIES.

Told by Men who were not Within a Hundred Miles of the Scene.

New York Sun.

The late Colonel Scott, of the war records office, who died on Saturday, often confounded many a storyteller. It was he who had the documents at his elbow to furnish the exact truth in regard to every battle and campaign, and every order or report in regard to them. To him went a host of people who wanted light on the war. A few weeks before his death Colonel Scott said: "There are innumerable calls on me from officers on both sides for exact information about various movements and engagements. Most of them deal with personal affairs. Some fellow who led a scout wants to hunt up a report where his name is mentioned. A major general is not often any more sure of facts twenty-five years old than a private, and a dispute with a brother officer sends both here for the record. It not infrequently happens that I unwittingly deal some of my best friends cruel blows. A Western senator came here a year or so ago and got documents from me that made Admiral Porter ridiculously imaginative, where everybody supposed he was precisely historical, in regard to President Lincoln's visit to Richmond at the surrender, and an alleged interview en route with Duff Green. The greater part of the story turned out to be fiction. One day an old officer came rushing in, and, in an excited tone, exclaimed:

"'Have you said I was not in the second battle of Bull Run?'

"'No, not exactly that,' I said.

"'Well, Bob Scott, I was told you said so, and I came in here to put daylight through you if you stuck to it.'

"'Oh, no,' I replied laughing. 'I never said you were not in that battle. What I said was that you yourself, in an official report dated the day after the battle, had said you were in the Cumberland valley, a hundred miles from Centreville and Bull Run.'

"His eyes looked dizzy, and his face was a most amusing picture of consternation. What I said was true. I tapped a bell, called a clerk, who brought the officer's report, and there in his own handwriting, over his signature, in black and white, was his own word that he was not at Bull Run. He read the report through twice, in silence so solid you could slice it. Then he took his hat, and, without a word, arose and left the building.

"A prominent officer of my acquaintance has described often in my hearing, with great minuteness, the battle of the Monitor and Merrimac. He told the story as an eye witness, described his fieldglass and the point of observation. I paid no attention to the matter until I had heard the tale told twice. Then I became curious, and hunted up the official reports made by this officer. I found that if he saw the Monitor and Merrimac in that battle his fieldglass was a most powerful one. He never saw the Monitor and Merrimac fight, but was at Falls Church the day of the battle, if his own reports are to be believed. There is a good deal of fiction in our war stories.

"The greatest number of inquiries about war history," said Colonel Scott, "come from the South. The Johnnies fought well, and, in the absence of a good deal else to give them satisfaction, take great pleasure in their fighting. Nearly all the prominent Confederate officers have visited this old building, and hardly a day passes that we do not receive half a dozen letters from Southerners asking for information."

Scooped in the Pot.

A party of poker-players had a rather exciting experience at Accomac (Va.) Courthouse several nights ago. They were in an exciting game of draw in an upper story of a private house, when, to their utter amazement, a female figure appeared upon the scene armed with a formidable hatchet and began to berate the men for cheating her husband, who was also engaged in the game. They all protested their innocence, and swore that they had been losers in the game. She would not listen to them, but hurled the hatchet at their heads, putting them to rout and causing some of them to tumble down the steps and others to leap out of the window to the ground below. She scooped in the jackpot and several private piles that had been left on the table by the frightened players, amounting in all to about $15, and returned home in triumph with her captured booty and crestfallen husband.

Never Quit

Till to-morrow, to-day's duty. If you have a Cold, Cough, Bronchitis, or any form of Throat or Lung disease, do not neglect it. Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, if promptly taken, will speedily relieve and cure all ailments of this character.

Two years ago I took a severe Cold, which, being neglected, was followed by a terrible Cough. I lost flesh rapidly, had night sweats, and was soon confined to my bed. A physician was called, but the medicine he prescribed afforded only temporary relief. A friend advised the use of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. I began taking this medicine, and before finishing the first bottle was able to sit up; four bottles effected a perfect cure. —Geo. W. Dick, Newton, Mass.

In several cases of Bronchitis, caused by exposure to damp and cold weather, I have used Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. It is an anodyne expectorant of great value and usefulness to patients of all ages. Its certainty of action, and its safety as a household remedy, are forcible arguments in its favor. No other cough preparation does its work so quickly and satisfactorily. — C. E. Hoyt, M. D., New Orleans, La.

THE LINSEED OIL MILL.

Ground Bought in the North End of the City for a Site.

Some Delay in Securing Machinery, but the Enterprise Will be Under Way Within Six Months.

No permanent organization has been effected yet by the Portland Linseed Oil Company, articles of incorporation of which were filed a few days since in the office of the clerk It is expected that the stockholders will very soon hold a meeting, when a board of directors will be chosen and afterwards officers elected Everything is being satisfactorily arranged and there is no question now but the enterprise will be carried forward to successful operation before the snows of next winter are seen

Negotiations have been pending for some days for the purchase of a suitable location and a committee of three was appointed to select a piece of ground and to arrange satisfactory terms This it is understood has been effected Two blocks have been purchased on the line of the Northern Pacific, in the lower portion of the city The ground is near the Oregon Railway and Navigation Company's old boneyard, and thus also, favorably situated with respect to navigation Ready easy and cheap access to lines of transportation was an important consideration and these desirable features have been secured by the committee in the purchase of the land As yet the purchase price has not been made public

It was estimated that suitable ground could be secured, adequate machinery purchased, a building erected and the oil mill placed in operation for about $60 000 or $70 000 On this basis it would not be necessary to pay up the full amount of the capital stock—$100 000 Since Mr H J Corbett went East in the interest of the stockholders, it is learned that certain machinery, which it was hoped could be secured cannot be obtained This failure will necessitate the building of new machinery especially for the projected mill and will involve an additional outlay of $30 000 Under these circumstances it has been deemed expedient for the full amount of the capital stock to be raised, and, to make it easier for the needed funds to be raised, it is quite likely that several well-known capitalists who are anxious to come into the syndicate will be allowed to take stock Definite action will be taken in this matter as soon as a permanent organization is effected Plans and specifications for the building have already been completed, and now that the ground has been secured, and arrangements in progress for purchasing the machinery active work will doubtless be commenced soon Six months it is expected will be all the time required to have the mill in readiness for operation from the date of the actual commencement of the work Those who are interested in the important project, are prominent business men in this community, are gentlemen of capital and of enterprise, and, now that active steps have been taken, will unquestionably push matters through to an early completion.

A more important branch of home industry could scarcely be started There is every element of success to be secured which will render such a project feasible and such an investment profitable Great quantities of oils are used on this part of the coast, which must be either manufactured here or else imported. Flax can be cultivated very successfully in almost every section of Oregon Washington territory and Idaho. With adequate facilities in the way of late, improved machinery, of skilled labor with an abundant supply of raw material, and with a ready and profitable market both here and elsewhere what is to operate against the success of the enterprise? Abundant capital can be obtained right here in Portland with which to start the project on an extensive scale and maintain it so that really there are no obstacles to impede the progress of the good work thus inaugurated

THE STAGE

THE NEW PARK —Next week's attraction will be James M Ward and Carrie Clarke Ward well known here who will present a number of standard Irish plays, including 'The Red Fox' a new play, which has made a great hit.

TO SEE HER RUN THE RAPIDS.

Talk of an Excursion to the Cascades the Day the Hassalo Comes Over

It was stated in these columns several days since that the Oregon Railway & Navigation Company proposed to bring the steamer Hassalo down through the rapids of the Columbia at the Cascades Nothing now prevents this purpose from being carried into effect at once but the present stage of water To bring a steamer safely through those whirling seething rapid rolling masses of water, and over the great rocks which so thickly beset the channel at that point of the river, the stage must be sufficiently high to enable a boat to pass clear above the latter perilous obstructions Before the water shall have reached that stage to insure the safe passage of a steamer, there must be a rise of from six to seven feet This will require some time, as the Columbia is coming up rather slowly The semi-tropic fervor of a week s sun among the snowy mountain ranges of the great Columbia river basin will produce a very marked increase in the volume of water flowing seaward When ever the safe stage is reached the Hassalo will steam up and run the watery gauntlet. Though by no means the first time the attempt has been made successfully a great degree of public interest very naturally attaches to the running of the rapids There is that element of risk and exciting adventure which adds a keen edge to the curiosity and love of excitement and danger in human nature To see a steamer making the plunging passage from the head of the great rapids down to the lower Cascades is a thrilling sight which everyone would love to witness Should an opportunity be presented there would be no lack of spectators when the Hassalo makes the 'foaming race"

It is proposed to afford all who wish to see this splendid sight a chance to do so There is strong talk of getting up an excursion from Portland on the day the steamer makes the 'shoot" Any number of thousands of spectators could line either bank of river below but in plain sight of the main rapids and have a splendid view of the exciting spectacle The proposition is to land the excursionists at Bonneville and the lower Cascades From those points trains could convey the people to any of the desirable points of observation Thus far the matter of getting up an excursion has been merely talked of It would be a safe guess that there will be a big crowd of eager spectators should the plan of an excursion be carried into effect

RUMORED CHANGE OF PROGRAMME

Report that the O R & N. Will Tap Eureka Flat From the East.

The Walla Walla people are feeling happy over their railroad prospects Not only is G W Hunt getting along finely with their Eureka Flat road, but they have hopes that the O R & N Co will abandon their proposed line through Eureka Flat to Wallula and will build down by Pampa and come into Prescott, and so all the travel and traffic of the road will pass through Walla Walla instead of going by Eureka Flat to Wallula.

The intentions of the O R & N Co in this matter are unknown, but the fact that after the plant to be used in building the road to Eureka Flat had been unloaded at Wallula, and contractors were bargaining for supplies orders were received to pick up the entire outfit and send it up to Prescott has led the Walla Walla people to think that there was to be an entire change of programme The men in charge of the plant explained its removal to Mr Hunt's men by saying that they were going up to Prescott to begin at that end of the line, but of course they knew nothing about the matter further than the orders they received to move

Speaking of the gang of Italians who came to Wallula to get work on the road to Eureka Flat and were disappointed, a gentleman acquainted with the circumstances says that Carey Bros were not to blame in the matter The men were sent by some employment agency, or something of that sort They have been camping around Umatilla in the brush and sand not suffering from cold but pretty hard up for something to eat Many of them profess to be stone cutters, for whom there would be no employment on the proposed line They are represented to be a very degraded lot of undersized lazzaroni not by any means the equals of the Chinese They speak the language of Dante, after a style of their own, and there may be a lot of opera singers and Michael Angelos in the crowd but they don t look that way The stone cutters might make money by going into the business of carving Indian gods and other aboriginal relics, which now find a ready sale

CUT IN RATES TO CHINA

Reduction by the Pacific Mail Affecting Flour Shipments from Portland

The steamships of the Canadian Pacific calling at San Francisco caused the Pacific Mail Steamship Company to reduce rates on freight to China from $7 a ton to $4 This interferes to some extent with the shipment of flour from this place to China as the Canadian up to the present time has not been able to meet this reduced rate On flour shipped from here to Vancouver the Northern Pacific charges $1 75 to Tacoma and the boat from Tacoma to Vancouver $1 per ton making $3 75 in gold equal to $3 50 in Chinese silver which taken out of the $6 in silver the Canadian company charge leaves them only $2 50 in silver

This condition will have to be remedied in some way, either by sending the flour to San Francisco for shipment on the Canadian company's boats there or by having them call at Astoria Eventually a boat will doubtless be put on between Portland and Vancouver and the sooner this is done the better It cannot be long, however till our merchants see the necessity of having a steamship line between this port and China direct

THE DIVORCE MILL

One Grist Ground Out and Another Que Started Yesterday

S Barker commenced suit in the state circuit court yesterday against his wife, Anna Barker to procure a divorce They were married in San Rafael, Cal in 1880 and have three children, aged respectively 7 6 and 2 years the custody of which plaintiff prays for on the ground that the mother is unfit to have control of them Barker accuses his wife of gross and habitual drunkenness contracted since their marriage, and continuing for two years prior to the beginning of this suit also with cruel and inhuman treatment, that she has often frequented and visited saloons and houses of ill-repute, and that she has neglected her family

Bertha M Munk was yesterday granted a decree of divorce by Judge Stearns from Geo L Munk, to whom she was married in Chicago, Ill, in August 1883 The defendant is charged with having accused his wife of being unchaste, and otherwise abusing her winding up his matrimonial career with deserting the plaintiff Mrs Munk was permitted to resume her maiden name, King, and she was also granted the custody of her minor child

A SMART CHINAMAN'S OPINION.

What a Portland Merchant Thinks of the New Treaty

Yesterday an OREGONIAN reporter asked Seid Buck the well known Chinese merchant for his opinion of the new Chinese treaty and the Chinese exclusion bill which has been drawn up as a sequel to it Seid Buck reads THE OREGONIAN every morning and keeps well informed on all matters of national importance especially what refers to his native country He said This exclusion bill is not being made with the object of doing the United States any benefit It is just the whim of a few politicians who cater to the demands of the lower and ignorant classes the better class of people having no objection to the Chinese If there were no politicians there would be no such trouble and the country would be much better off To our country the exclusion makes no difference In the first place if there was not an opening for Chinese laborers in America none would come The people of the coast need Chinese labor which like everything else is governed by the law of supply and demand The exclusion bill if passed by congress will doubtless have the effect of diminishing the number of Chinese laborers in the United States and the remaining ones will reap the benefit of increased wages which will surely follow Perhaps the Chinese merchants will suffer decreased business by reason of the falling off in the number of their countrymen There has been considerable talk of enacting laws compelling the Chinese to leave the United States within certain time but I don t think it will ever be done I wonder what the American nation would think if China were to enact a law excluding Americans It would be every bit as fair as the measure congress is about to pass!

THE COLUMBIA RIVER JETTY Work on the jetty at Fort Stevens is making good progress About ninety men in all are employed and some 250 tons of rock per day used The piling of the jetty trestlework is out 3300 feet beside 500 feet of shore protection The brush and stone filling is of course a little behind The sandbar which forms from the head of Cape Adams, in the rear of the jetty keeps pace with it as it advances and will ultimately fill up the space behind the jetty entirely Messrs. Wiberg & Johnson are supplying plenty of fine large solid rock from their quarry above Fisher's landing which will not wash away.

It is beautifully situated on the river opposite the north end of Portland, and DOWN the river from the central portion of Portland. The bridges already built, under construction and contemplated, are fast driving the heavy business of the city and nearly all of the shipping further and further down stream. Soon all of it will be carried on below the railway and passenger bridge. Albina will get the benefit of this move, and even now she has the in Oregon.

The Mammoth

Union Car and Machine Shops

built by the Northern Pacific Terminal Co., in which the O. R. & N. Co., the Union Pacific, the Oregon Short Line, Southern Pacific and Northern Pacific Companies are interested, are located here. These shops have just been completed, and will soon commence operations with a large force of workmen.

Other industrial enterprises are located here, among which are the Portland Flouring Mills, the largest in Oregon. A dry dock, capable of accommodating the largest ship afloat, is now also under construction

Several companies are now organizing to embark in other industrial and manufacturing enterprises, all of which will be located at Albina, because it is here that

Dr. Nichols's Address Before the Medical Society

Hahnemann's New System of Medicine Progress in the World Down to the Present Time

At the request of many advocates of homeopathic [illegible] read in the evening report of the orations of Dr [illegible] before the State Homeopathic Medical Society giving a history of the movement as promulgated by Dr Hahnemann has been obtained for publication [illegible] Members Ladies and Gentlemen of the Oregon State Medical Society [illegible] I am highly

In this paper I propose to give a short history with date of birth and progress of Hahnemann s new system of medicine and I will answer a question that I am frequently asked How did the founder of homeopathy first conceive the idea of [illegible]

THE FIRST CONCEPTION

Of Hahnemann s law of similars came while translating into German Cullen s Materia Medica He was [illegible] with the contradictory views of the [illegible] cinchona that he resolved to prove [illegible] himself. He was now strong and in [illegible] health and the experiment which [illegible] produced on him were similar to those [illegible] fever This experiment was in [illegible] There are four years he continued [illegible] giving us not order don't [illegible] Don't put it off You want a [illegible] Suit, get it now while the [illegible] Patterns are [illegible] ock to select from If you want [illegible]

In 1790 Hahnemann published an elaborate treatise entitled Organon of the Rational Art of Healing which reappeared in 1810 1829 and in 1833 in new, revised and enlarged editions

IN LEIPSIC

In 1811 Hahnemann moved to Leipsic in order to found an institution for the instruction of young physicians in the doctrine and practical and scientific methods of treatment this he was disappointed as he had expected support but in order to gain recognition obtained a place in the university as a teacher Here again he had the opposition of the old professors who had warned the students against the new heterodoxy and there were few students who became interested in him and those he formed in a class were not powerful It consisted of such old veterans as Frederick, son of Samuel Hahnemann Ernest Staph G William Gross C H [illegible] long Fred Rueckert and several others afterwards distinguished themselves in the new system of medicine and every year added new converts to the true science of healing The list of remedies proven by himself at this time Hahnemann prepared the remedies for each proving [illegible] only twelve at this time Hahnemann produced and accurately registered [illegible] himself and in 1819 he had forty two [illegible] also proved by himself and other [illegible] death of Samuel Hahnemann occurred in Paris July 2 1843 All friends of the movement felt the loss deeply The numerous homeopathic physicians in Germany were [illegible] were eighty-eight in 1844 [illegible] in 1889 [illegible] Switzerland and Austria [illegible] There has been a rapid increase since [illegible] time and the homeopathic practice is [illegible] as popular in Germany that the number [illegible] of allopathic pharmacies do [illegible] homeopathic medicine I have given all the space to Germany I can find from the fact that it was the birthplace of homeopathy

IN GREAT BRITAIN

In the year 1826 the subject of homeopathy was first introduced and discussed in the British Isles In 1827 Prince Leopold from Germany to London [illegible] Queen Victoria He had studied homeopathy in Germany and practiced it in London and was the first to introduce the new system into England [illegible] public notice was taken of Dr Quin until 1833 when Hahnemann was so great that the censors of the Royal College of Physicians were [illegible] condition Dr Quin you will desist from practicing physic until you have been examined and licensed thereto under the seal of the college otherwise you will be fined" Dr Quin replied [illegible] respect that I did not [illegible] the profession of January 4 but I cannot conceive that a document of this nature was required [illegible] an art I have studied to be the [illegible] to [illegible] Hahnemann [illegible] Gregory signed Frederick [illegible] This was not repeated again and one of the censors advised the college to let Dr Quin alone which they did. [illegible] told the [illegible] London homeopathy in England [illegible] wonderful that the new system of medicine could make the progress it did under the peculiar disadvantages under the first generation and made [illegible] Set with all this to contend with [illegible] system of medicine has made great progress in England and Scotland under the leadership of such men as Dr Black [illegible] Hughes and many others Law [illegible] to suppress the practice of homeopathy [illegible] through the influence and exertions of Lord Elcho in the house of lords [illegible] Cowper in the house of commons [illegible] equal rights in every respect

IN FRANCE

In 1828 Count des Guidi a doctor of medicine went to Naples for his wife health [illegible] there he was induced to [illegible] Hahnemann which did a great deal [illegible] homeopathic physician Under his treatment his wife was restored to perfect health [illegible] produced a very decided effect upon [illegible] Guidi so much so that he spent [illegible] years in the homeopathic church in the [illegible] hospital and in 1829 went to Lyons [illegible] and devoted himself to the practice of homeopathy The [illegible] of the new system of medicine [illegible]

In 1835 Hahnemann himself located in Paris and so it became the leading city [illegible] the new science of medicine The [illegible] were about seventy homeopathic physicians in Paris and nearly 40 [illegible]

IN AUSTRIA

An army surgeon was the first to introduce [illegible] a new system of medicine [illegible] Austria and here, as in France the opposition was intense so much so that the emperor [illegible] Tyrol I was induced by his physician [illegible] to make this decree "Hahnemann's homeopathic method of cure shall not be [illegible] But in 1836, the people [illegible] so much more [illegible] followed by Hahnemann s [illegible] than by the old allopathic [illegible] A large deputation of [illegible] waited on the emperor and [illegible]
